RED SOX, WITH FOSTER PITCHING, WIN SECOND WORLD'S SERIES GAME

President Wilson and His Fiancee Share Honors With Young Bostonian.

WAS BRILLIANT GAME

Was a Hard-Hitting Contest, With Many Pretty Fielding Plays Featuring.

Mayer Pitched Good Ball for the Phillies.

Philadelphia, October 9. — The breaks of the game, those fickle favors of fortune that sway the pendulum of fate, smiled upon Boston today, and tonight the red-hosed champions of the American League and the Philadelphia pennant bearers of the National circuit were on their way to Boston, with the honors of the 1915 world's series all at evens. President Woodrow Wilson and his fiancee, Mrs. Norman Galt, shared the honors of the second contest with a stoutly-built young Boston pitcher known to baseball fame as Georgia Foster.

Foster Won Much Honor.

Foster may never go down in history as an Alexander, a Walter Johnson or a Christy Mathewson, but when the story of the second battle of the current series is filed away in the archives of the National pastime it will be found that all he did today was to hold the fighting Phillies to three base hits, to strike out eight of their best wielders of the willow, to make as many hits himself as he allowed the entire opposition, including a sizzling smash in the ninth that sent Gardner across the plate with the winning Boston run. In addition to these few meagre activities in the box, young Foster sped to first base a couple of times and took throws from his fellow fielders that turned two seeming errors into sensational outs.

Crowd Greets President Wilson.

Mr. Foster on the field and Mr. Wilson in the stand were indeed the heroes of the day. Foster won by 2 to 1. The President had a wider margin, for the more than 20,000 baseball enthusiasts crowded in the friendly little Philly park were on their feet for and with Mr. Wilson time after time. They greeted him with cheers when he came and forgot the sting of defeat to send him on his way to Washington with shouts that echoed for blocks around. Mrs. Galt was greatly admired by the baseball throngs and was smilingly happy over the attentions showered upon her.

Roots for Phillies.

The President rooted royally for the home team. When the signal far "all up" came in the supposedly mystic seventh inning, Mr. Wilson was among the first on his feet. But when the tumult and the shouting died, the Phillies' cause had not been bettered, for Foster in this frame turned back the first three men to face him. In the last half of the ninth, when the Phillies' plight was desperate, a band in the grand stand began to play "The Star Spangled Banner." Mr. Wilson caught the first strains of the National anthem and again was on his feet, followed by the entire crowd. The bleacherites in the far field stands heard the music, too, and joined the standing throng with hats in hand. The scene was one of genuine dramatic tenseness. But it was not written in the book of baseball that the Phillies should win today so neither the patriotic presence of the President nor the appealing influence of the latest White House romance could help them to victory.

Day of Real Baseball.

It was real baseball today from the moment that Hooper, the first man up, was passed on four bad balls until Tris Speaker, one of the greatest out-gardeners the game has ever known, ended the contest by reaching into the center field bleachers to snatch a bullet-like drive from Paskert's bat and turn a potential home run into a meteoric out, thereby saving for Foster his well-earned ball game.

The play was sharp and brilliant through all the innings, as different from the somewhat saffron-hued contest of yesterday, as world series games should differ from the battles on the sand lots. The field was fast and the players of both teams seemed to have found themselves. The nervousness of yesterday had disappeared and there was not a semblance of the lack of thought that gave an ivory finish to some of the episodes of the start of the series. There was little to choose today between the teams in the field. The only error was charged to Catcher Burns, of the Phillies, who dropped a difficult throw from second and thereby allowed Hooper to score in the first.

Much Excitement for Fans.

There was also a wonderful difference in the effect of today's play upon the crowd. Yesterday there was a lack of excitement which kept the throng in an attitude of indifference most of the time, whereas today the faithful followers of the Phillies were constantly swept off their feet by some of the wonderful fielding features. The rooters aggressively followed each play and at times their applause was almost as generously bestowed upon a visiting player as upon the heroes of the home team. Gardner and Speaker and Foster, of the Red Sox, and Bancroft, Whitted and Stock, of the Phillies, seemed to be all over the playing field when their presence was most sorely needed and their flashing plays brought spontaneous response from the specta

Mayer Pitched Good Ball.

Manager Pat Moran, of the Ph placed his faith today in Erskine er, the elongated under-hand from Atlanta, Ga., and Mayer a far better game than the score will show. Although he more than two times the nu hits registered off Foster, he dom in real difficulty and fence-wreckers of the Red batting pop-flies most of Three times Tris Speaker ha fortune to lead off for the S times he stepped confidently to the batter's box. But twice he popped to short and once he hit a slow in-field bounder.

This was not the entire batting record for Tris, however, for in the first inning he shot a scorching single to right which sent Hooper from first to third on his way home with the first run of the game. It was Speaker's first hit of the series and his batting average for the two games stands tonight at .167.

Foster a Batting Star.

Although Foster's occupation is supposed to be that of keeping the other fellows from hitting, he promises now to be the batting hero of the series, getting away today with an average of .750 in four times up.

When he first faced the puzzling under-hand delivery of Mayer the Boston pitcher ignominiously whiffed. This must have been a decoy, however, for the next time he landed on a fast one and slammed it right up against the right field wall for the first extra base hit of the series. He was left stranded. In the seventh he shot a single to center and again his teammates could not send him across, despite the use of two pinch hitters. Foster evidently got tired of depending on his team-mates to help him home, so in the ninth with Gardner on second the score a tie, he decided to break up a perfectly pleasant game of ball that seriously threatened to go to extra innings. He slammed a long single to right center and cantered to second when Paskert made a futile effort to cut off the winning run at the plate.

Hard Hitting Game.

It was a hard hitting game on both sides, but the Sox got the breaks and their drives went safe. The Phillies' batters hit ball after ball with a force that ordinarily would have gone for base hits. But today the drives went within reach of the fast Boston outfield.

In the fifth inning it looked as if the Philadelphia players were going to bat out a victory in spite of the frowns of fortune. "Gavvy" Cravath, slugger extraordinary of the National League, who couldn't get hold of the ball yesterday at all, laid into one in the fifth and sent it whistling down left field line for a double. Luderus sent another double to deep center and Cravath went home. The crowd was on its feet yelling like mad for a second in the series seemed almost certain and the Boston players plainly were nervous. The crowd shouted and howled for Whitted to bring "Ludy" home and each time Foster began to wind up for a pitch the din was deafening. The best Whitted could do, however, was an best Whitted could do, however, was an advanced Luderus to third.

With only one out the infield came in to protect the plate and here came one of the breaks that influenced the result. Niehoff caught a fast one from Foster square on his bat and the fans roared as it sped away on a line only to smash with a "zip" into the mit of Boston's big guardian of the first bag, one Hobiltzell. This play took all the steam from the Phillies' attack and Burns dashed the fast fading hopes of the fans on the rocks by swinging his life away at three fast curves. Burns was so anxious to kill the ball that he couldn't find it at all.

Mayer justified the confidence of Pat Moran in putting him forward as the second line of defense to the mighty Alexander despite the fact that another game went against him. Mayer was game and cool at all times and between the first and ninth innings he held the Boston attack well in hand. He struck out seven men and allowed but two bases on balls, both of these going to Hooper. Mayer made Duffy Lewis look foolish in the second and sixth when he had him breaking his back after wide outcurves which broke far away from the plate. For this ignominy to one of Boston's best batters Young Foster turned in and fanned the batting idol of the Phillies, Mr. Cravath, the first time he faced him and the last. It was in between these whiffing exhibitions, however, that "Gavvy" whaled one into left for a double which eventually tied up the game, for the local club, and paved the way for a possible victory.

Contest Interesting Throughout.

The free manner in which the other players were meeting the ball, however, kept the fans on edge and made it a ball game from start to finish. The players were aggressive and this had a corresponding effect upon the fans. Umpire Rigler didn't please the locals by some of his decisions, particularly when he called Bancroft out on the third one in the ninth. Just prior to this Rigler would not let Stock take first when it seemed the ball had hit him on the elbow.

The fact that President Wilson and Mrs. Galt were to witness today's game gave an unusual air of excitement to the preliminaries. Docorators were out early and had the Presidential box aglow with the National and city colors. The crowd came early, too, all anxious to see the President, of course, but just a little more anxious to see his fiancee. From 1 o'clock on reports kept coming that Mr. Wilson was about to enter the stand and there was a rush to the field to surround his box. Even the players of the two teams forgot their work and joined the throng over near the visiting players' bench Just after 3 o'clock a shout outside the

CARRANZA REGIME TO BE RECOGNIZED

Pan-American Representatives Unanimously Decide

MOST IMPORTANT STEP

Believed Decision of United States Will Have Great Moral Effect and That Many Elements Will Support the Government.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Recognition of the Carranza government as the de facto government of Mexico, was unanimously decided upon today by the Pan-American conference. Secretary Lansing issued this statement:

"The conference, after careful consideration of the facts, has found that the Carranza party is the only party in Mexico which possesses the essentials for recognition as the de facto government, and they have so reported to their respective government."

Secretary Lansing on behalf of the United States expressed its intention to recognize General Carranza and the ambassadors of Brazil, Chile, Argentina and the ministers of Bolivia, Uruguay and Guatemala transmitted tonight the decision of this government as well as their own opinions in agreement with it. Mr. Lansing has obtained the approval of President Wilson to the plan and before the conference began all the other ministers in the Latin-American corps also had given their adherence to it.

Most Important Step.

Today's action was regarded generally as the most important diplomatic step in the Mexican situation since the United States decided to withhold recognition from the Huerta government, more than two years ago. It means that the Carranza government will receive the moral support of the United States, which will include an embargo on arms against opposing factions as soon as recognition is actually extended, which probably will be within a fortnight.

The fact that the United States already has decided to recognize the Carranza government, it is thought, will have an important moral effect in Mexico. Officials believe many elements will now align themselves with Carranza and that the latter himself will adopt a liberal attitude towards his opponents permitting of a reconciliation of the various branches of the original constitutionalist party of which he was one of the founders.

Carranza's Assurances.

Secretary Lansing made it clear that while the United States could not condition recognition upon the question of giving amnesty or the settlement of other questions of a strictly internal nature, satisfactory assurances on these and other subjects have been received from the Carranza government. These guarantees are as follows:

1. Foreigners will be protected in their lives and property.

2. The Carranza government assumes full responsibility for claims growing out of the revolution and will adjust them equitably by means of international commissions.

3. No one will suffer in his life and property on account of religious beliefs; all priests and nuns who have not taken part in Mexican politics will be permitted to return and will be protected provided they do not participate in politics and obey the Mexican laws governing the separation of church and state.

4. A decree of amnesty is in preparation which will enabre all elements, irrespective of political affiliations heretofore, to return to Mexico with the exception of those guilty of complicity in the plot to kill Madero and Suarez or who are charged with civil crimes. A few political leaders who

SAILORS START RIOT AND TWO LOSE LIVES

Several Others Were Seriously Injured on Pier

General Disturbance Among Members of Crews of Three Steamers Causes Fight Which Lasts for Several Hours.

Newport News, Va., Oct. 9.—Two men were knocked overboard and drowned and several others were seriously injured here today in a riot among half a hundred merchant sailors on a pier. Four arrests were made, the men being held on a charge of mutiny.

The dead are: Charles Lund and Carl Svendson.

The sailors were said to be members of the crews of the British steamers Berwindale and Terek and the Norwegian steamer Maricoa. The fight started in the arly afternoon and continued several hours before the combined police force of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Company could disperse the mob.

The men fro mthe Terek were said to have demanded their pay from the commander and when it was refused they rushed aboard the vessel to attack the officers. The latter, however, had barricaded themselves in a cabin. The cause of the general disturbance has not been determined.

The bodies of the drowned men were recovered.

Washington, Oct. 9.—A monument to President John Tyler will be unveiled in Hollywood cemetery, Richmond, Va., next Monday with a congressional delegation in attendance.

NAVY DEFENSE OF COAST "SMASHED"

Admiral Fletcher's "Enemy" Fleet Forces Landing

WAR GAME IS ENDED

For the Second Successive Time the Atlantic Coast Defense From Enemy Invasion, Theoretically, Has Met With Failure.

Washington, Oct. 9.—For the second successive time the naval defense of the Atlantic coast has been smashed, theoretically, and "hostile" troops landed on American soil. Admiral Fletcher's "blue" fleet has scattered or "destroyed" by a night torpedo attack, the Navy Department announced tonight, and the transports bearing an "enemy" force steamed into Delaware Bay at 6 o'clock tonight bringing an end the fall navy maneuvers which began October 4. Rear Admiral Knight, commanding the "red" enemy fleet had until October 15 to make a landing.

Details will not be available until reports of the umpires reach the Navy Department. It is clear from the brief report of the result, however, that Admiral Fletcher's scouts, combining the seas for signs of the approaching enemy, failed to find him while Admiral Knight's destroyers, in a daring night raid, found and sunk nearly all of the 16 blue battleships.

News of the enemy's approach found the "blue" fleet concentrated at Hampton Roads. The "red" force was reported about 1,200 miles at sea off Chesapeake capes. For purposes of the war game, the coast between Eastport, Me., and Monomoy Point, Cape Cod was closed today but all the wide reach from Cape Cod to the southern tip of Florida was open to assault by the "red" fleet.

Admiral Fletcher's scouting ships and destroyers rushed to sea under forced draft when the word came, while the main fleet cruiser on patrol along the coast. The scouts failed in their task.

The game was played not only by the fleets but by all coast navy yards and stations and the bureaus of the Department here as well. Admiral Fletcher reported constructive accidents and casualties from time to time. Once the battleship Wyoming theoretically was swept by an epidemic of dyphtheria and ordered back to the New York yard. Again the Wyoming was rammed and headed toward Narragansett Bay, according to Admiral Fletcher's "constructive" report.

The Navy Department's statement lays stress on the fact that no special efforts were made to augment the "blue" fleet by hastening repair work, putting reserve ships in commission or withdrawing ships on special duty.

THOUSANDS TAKE PART IN TEMPERANCE PARADE

Striking Anti-Saloon Demonstration in Chicago

Held in Celebration of Enforcing Order to Close Saloons on Sunday —First Step to Vote Chicago Dry at April Election.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—Scenes typical of New Year's marked the passing of the Sunday saloon in Chicago tonight. The crowds which swarmed in the cafes at midnight made the occasion one of celebration which cafe men said eclipsed all former records.

The ruling of the corporation council, sanctioned by Chief of Police Healy, that patrons in cafes and restaurants at midnight Saturday could remain until they had finished their refreshments, caused many to obtain drinks and food in advance with the determination to linger even longer than they would have ordinarily.

At midnight a small regiment of extra policemen began picket duty throughout the city. Their orders were to stop the selling of liquor after that time. They had little to do, however, as saloon men observed the edict of Mayor Thompson and closed their places tight.

It was the first time since 1871 that Chicago saloons have been closed on Sunday.

Most hotel managers declared tonight that the expense incurred in operating their bars for one hour at midnight Sunday, which the law permits, would not be justified by the sales made. Only a few saloons, it is thought, will take advantage of this opportunity.

With Mayor Thompson's order closing saloons on Sunday effective at midnight tonight, thousands of temperance advocates paraded here today in one of the most striking anti-saloon demonstrations in the city's history. The parade followed the refusal of Judge David E. Matchett to issue an injunction preventing the enforcement of the mayor's order, which would close 7,152 saloons.

Chiecf of Police Healey, after telephonic communication with the mayor at San Francisco, announced that arrests would be made tomorrow for violation of the order. Nevertheless the organized liquor interests spread the word among saloon keepers to "clamp the lid on tonight after midnight."

A. J. C. Cremak, head of the United Societies, said he believed this plan would make the order of the mayor so

TRAIN ROBBERS HAVE NOT YET BEEN CAUGHT

Many Special Detectives in Search For Bandits

United States Officers and Railroad Police Claim to Have Closed All Avenues of Escape in Vicinity of the Hold-Up.

Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 9.—Every effort is being made by United States officers and railroad detectives to track the bandits who early yesterday held up and robbed Baltimore & Ohio passenger train No. 1 at Central Station. A report received here late today said they are being trailed toward the Ohio river in the direction of Sistersville, W. Va. Railroad police stationed here have been ordered to that city where a large force of deputies and police is being assembled.

All trains, freight and passenger, are being searched as they arrived in the yards at Benwood, five miles south of here, and the same is being done all along the route between Wheeling and Parkersburg. Nearly a hundred special detectives in addition to the railroad police are at work in this vicinity and it is claimed that every possible avenue of escape for the men has been closed.

A report from Sisterville says a large party of deputy sheriffs have surrounded a great tract of woods east of there in which they think the robbers may have secreted themselves. It is said it will take over a day to search it thoroughly.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE DIVIDES W. C. T. U.

Women Unjustly Discriminated Against, Says Clark.

ADDRESSES CONVENTION

Chief Justice Reviews Status of "Equal Suffrage" in States and Countries —Blames Judiciary More Than Legislatures.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 9.—Chief Justice Walter Clark tonight before the W. C. T. U. State convention outlined the status of suffrage in the States of the Union and countries of the world and impending suffrage legislation and elections and called the roll of shining male suffrage advocates from President Wilson and Vice President Marshall and former President Roosevelt down, so to express it, to Joseph G. Cannon, "Arch Standpatter."

He did not mention the notary public case of State vs. Mrs. Noland Knight, which split the Supreme Court with him and Justice Brown as the minority, but he treated this issue at length. He insisted that the North Carolina constitution has never contained a requirement that the right of suffrage and right to hold office should be the same. Suffrage, he insisted, has been conferred arbitrarily, and necessarily so, but not so with office holding, which is an individual matter requiring personal selection of competent individuals.

He insisted that the constitutional restriction as to office holding that he claims the majority of the Supreme Court misconstrue, was injected purely through the negro issue in the Reconstruction period. "Yet," declared Judge Clark, "such is the power of preconceived opinion that we now behold woman debarred from holding any position whatever without any constitutional provision or legislative act forbidding them and, indeed, contrary to express legislative authority enabling them to do so."

The Chief Justice charged that most all the unjust discrimination against women in public affairs has come through judicial decisions and not through legislative act, "indeed, that legislatures have been busy removing these unjust discriminations created by the judges." He told the women that they cannot be rid of this discrimination until they lay hold on the ballot, when they can demand of the legislatures and all others justice for themselves.

While the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, assembled in State convention here, is striving to keep the temperance issue paramount as the convention progresses, it is a fact that the issue of woman suffrage has loomed large and has required heroic treatment to avoid breakers. The convention heard Governor Craig in his welcome address declare his personal aversion to woman suffrage and belief that there is a higher and nobler power that women exert. Then, too, they heard the annual address of their president. Mrs. Adelaide Goodno, in which she advocated woman suffrage and insisted that since the ballot is the way the men have of expressing their decisions, the women, of whom such a great army are in commercial and professional service, should have the same privilege.

Finally tonight came an address by Chief Justice Walter Clark in which he fired something of a "42 centimetre" shot for the suffrage cause.

It is a significant fact that the committee on resolutions to which the report of Mrs. Goodno, as president of the State Union, was referred, has found it impossible to agree on any sort of treatment of the suffrage issue in resolutions to be reported to the convention and declare that it is manifest that the convention is as sharply divided as is the committee, the whole question of suffrage being referred to the executive committee for investigation and report to the next convention. The convention re-elected all old officers for another term.

Asks Women to Write Letters.

Superintendent R. L. Davis, of the Anti-Saloon League, told the Woman's Christian Temperance Union State convention that the fight must go on in this State until prohibition is written in the constitution and all imports of liquor stopped; the Hobson resolution in Congress must be supported and support given the demand that saloon's be banished from Washington. He asked that letters be poured on Congressmen Small and Pou, of the First and Fourth districts, to impel their support of these measures.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND MRS. GALT RETURN TO WASHINGTON.

Pleased With Reception Given Them in New York and Philadelphia.

Washington, Oct. 9.—President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, his fiancee, returned to Washington tonight very tired but much pleased with the reception accorded them in New York and Philadelphia on their first public appearance since the engagement was announced. The couple completed two busy days by watching Boston defeat Philadelphia.

The return from Philadelphia was made on a special train which covered the distance without a stop in three hours and 35 minutes. As the party left the train the President shook hands with the engineer, L. G. Bramble.

The party dined at the White House, those present beside the President and his fiancee being Mrs. W. H. Bolling, Mrs. Galt's mother; Secretary and Mrs. McAdoo, Miss Helen Woodrow Bones and the Misses Lucy and Mary Smith, of New Orleans, cousins of the President; Col. E. T. Brown, of Atlanta; Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Carey Grayson, the President's physician.

In Philadelphia the President and Mrs. Galt received constant ovations. All the way from the railway station to the ball park they were applauded by crowds which lined the streets. At the park they had difficulty in making their way through throngs which the police apparently could not keep back.

Rumor had it that Mrs. Galt favored the Philadelphia team. Mrs. Galt talked excitedly to Mayor Blankenburg in the adjoining box when Philadelphia tied the score in the fifth inning.

The President kept his own score card and followed each play closely. He used to play baseball himself when in college and applauded feature plays impartially.

TUBERCULOSIS CONFERENCE ENDS.

Resolution Asks for Commission to Study Prevention of Tuberculosis.

Columbia, S. C., Oct. 9.—At the concluding session today the Southern Tuberculosis Conference adopted a resolution memorializing President Wilson and Congress for a commission of expert physicians and laymen to make a study of and determine, if possible, the basic factors involved in the prevention of tuberculosis. Another resolution expressed enforcement of the work of the United States Public Health Service for its investigation of tuberculosis problems in several sections of the country.

Physicians and health experts from eleven states attended.

FIRE DESTROYS TOBACCO WAREHOUSE IN RICHMOND.

Started Early This Morning in Tobacco District—Loss $100,000.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 10.—Fire which started about 1 o'clock this morning has destroyed Crenshaw tobacco warehouse. It is in the heart of the tobacco section of the city. Loss estimated at more than $100,000. The flames rapidly spread to other buildings and a considerable section of the wholesale and tobacco district is threatened.

At 2 o'clock practically the entire block surrounded by Thirteenh, Virginia and Carey streets had been wiped out and the flames were still in evidence. Two men who were sleeping in Crenshaw's warehouse are believed to have been burned to death. In the warehouse one hundred hogsheads of tobacco were packed for shipment to Italy. The loss is etimated at not less than $2b0,000.

Rockefeller has been paid $100,000 to the Woman's American Baptist Home Mission Society and $300,000 to the Woman's Baptist Foreign Mission Society. "WAR JUST BEGINNING"—VILLA

Annapolis, Md., Oct. 9.—One of the worst defeats they have suffered in years was administered to Navy this afternoon by Pittsburg University. The score was Pittsburg 47; Navy 12. The midshipmen were completely overpowered by the speed and force of the visitors' attack.

CITY OF BELGRADE IS OCCUPIED BY TEUTONS IN ATTACK ON SERBIA

Other Austro-German Troops Attempting Drive Into Serbian Territory.

BULGARS ON ADVANCE

The Anglo-French Continue to Land Daily at Saloniki to Aid Serbia.

Attitude of Greece Still Somewhat Obscure.

London, October 9. — Belgrade, the old capital of Serbia, or the greater part of it, is in possession of an enemy army for the second time since the outbreak of the war, while other Austro-German troops have crossed the Save and Danube rivers and are attempting to make a great drive into Serbian territory. It was not expected the Serbians would make any serious attempt to save the city. It is situated on a point of Serbian soil at the junction of the Save and Danube, jutting toward Austria, where it could be attacked from three sides.

Main Positions in Mountains.

The real test of strength will come when the invaders reach the main Serbian positions on the mountains, where the Austrians were so severely defeated last December. The present, however, is a more formidable attack, the new army group, under command of Field Marshall von Mackensen, having been organized for that purpose. It is supposed this army is largely commanded by German officers.

The Bulgarians, acting with their new allies, are advancing from Sofia toward Pirot, on the Servian frontier, the fortress which covers the road to Nish, the Serbian war capital. The French and British are landing 14,000 troops daily at Saloniki to go to aid Serbia.

Scene of Great Activity.

The Balkans therefore have taken the place with the Russian and western fronts as a center on which the interest of the world will rest for some time. The Black and Aegean seas also will be scenes of greater activity.

Although the Bulgarian minister here has not received or asked for his passports and declared today that Bulgaria had no quarrel with England, an attack on Serbia would be considered by England as sufficient reason for a quarrel.

Turkey, according to a Saloniki dispatch, is sending fifty thousand men to Varna and Dedeaghatch to help defend these ports.

Greece Yet Puzzles.

Greece's attitude is still somewhat obscure. The Greek minister at Paris today reiterated that Greece would continue a benevolent neutrality toward the entente powers. The allied capitals are awaiting a definite statement from the new Greek cabinet.

There has been more heavy fighting around Loos, in Artois, which the British took in their big attack three weeks ago and which now apparently is defended by the French. The latter say the Germans, who were the aggressors, were "mowed down," while Berlin declares that the attack made some progress, while a British attack northeast of Vermeles failed.

In Champagne the fighting seems to have resumed the character of trench warfare. In Lorraine, the Germans record the capture of a much contested height near Leintrey.

On Eastern Front.

Field Marshall Von Hindenburg, again striking at Dvinsk, has made some headway, but along the rest of the front the Russians are doing most of the attacking.

The Austro-Germans, it is believed here, are concentrating troops on both wings of the eastern line and intend to make one more effort to secure the line of the Dvina river in the north and drive the Russians across the Bessarabian frontier in the south, before digging themselves in for the winter.

A REAL DAUGHTER TO ATTEND.

Silver Jubilee of Founding of the D. A. R. at Washington.

Washington, Oct. 9.—The presence of Mrs. Mary C. Clark, of Alexandria, Va., a real daughter of the American Revolution, being the daughter of a Virginia Colonial trooper, will be the feature of a silver jubilee, celebrating the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Daughters of the American Revolution, to be held Monday at Memorial Continental Hall here. President Wilson has promised to speak in the afternoon. Regents and delegations from every state are expected.

park gave the signal that the President was at hand. A few minutes later he entered, Mrs. Galt just behind him. As they started for their seats, however, the President asked Mrs. Galt to precede him. Mrs. Galt was quickly recognized and had to join the President in acknowledging the tribute of the throng.

President Tosses Ball.

Then President Wilson tossed out a ball to Pitcher Mayer and the game was on. The first pitch went high and wide of the plate and Hooper did not offer at it. Burns was about to toss the sphere back to Mayer when Umpire Rigler took the ball away and gallantly presented it to Mr. Wilson who stowed the ball in one of his overcoat pockets, bought a score car dfor ten cents and settled down to a thorough enjoyment of the game.

Both teams, considered as united, and the players as individuals gave an exhibition of real world's series baseball today and left nothing to be desired in the skillful handling of the sphere and correct judgment in the field and on the bases.

While Foster was, of course, the hero of the day, every member of the two teams was keyed close to the perfection point and the error of the game, charged against Catcher Burns, was an excusable one. Both infields and outfields were faster than yesterday, due to the firm, sure footing, for the ground had dried thoroughly and there was little chance of the slip-ups which marred several plays Friday.

During most of the afternoon the pitchers had the advantage over the batters for the sky was overcast and light gray. This helped Foster in particular, who used a terrific speed at times and the ball was upon the batters before they had time to guage the direction of the break. He mixed his delivery well and was not dependent upon any one form of curve or slant. Foster seldom sent the ball over the heart of the plate, but worked the corners continually. He changed from a speedy ball to a floater and then to a sharp breaking curve so successfully that he had the Phillies at his mercy most of the time.

Allows Only Three Hits.

Although he faltered for a moment in the fifth inning when Cravath and Luderus doubled in succession, he regained control quickly and finished the inning by fanning Burns. These two doubles and Bancroft's single in the sixth were the only hits of the Philadelphia batters and in these two innings they had three runners on the bags, only one of whom scored. During the other sessions the National League champions went out in one, two, three order.

Mayer, on the other hand, did not have the same speed or control. He used a greater change of pace and wider curves but did not possess the speed or jump of Foster and the Boston batters had more time in which to look over his offerings. At times he appeared to be in doubt regarding the strong and weak points of the batter and the work between Mayer and Burns was not, as a result, as smooth as that of the opposing pair.

Several Pretty Catches.

The judgment of the infields and outfields in the handling of hard hit grounders and fly balls was far superior to the game of yesterday, despite the fact that a strong wind blew across the field most of the afternoon. Several catches made at critical moments in the game appeared to be certain extra base hits when they left the bat only to be turned into outs by Speaker, Hooper, Paskert or Whitted. Most of the hits that counted in the run making were clean cut, well played drives which never gave the fielders a chance. In this respect the game was far more interesting that the first contest.

A peculiar feature of this hitting was that three two-base drives came in a row. Foster sent his to left field after two were out in the fifth inning and as soon as he went into the box Cravath slammed one to left and Luderus followed with another to center.

Hitting Comparisons of Series.

In the two games to date the Boston players have made 18 hits for a total of three runs, while the Phillies have accumulated four runs on eight stops. In individual batting the Red Sox lead; Lewis, Gardner and Foster all being tied with three hits apiece. Hooper, Hoblitzell and Barry come next with two each. The best hitting among the Phillies has been done by Bancroft and Luderus, each of whom have two to his credit; one of Luderus' being the double which scored Cravath with the only run of today for the National Leaguers. Among the players who have yet to secure a safe hit are Stock, Niehoff, Burns and Mayer, all of whom played through at least one game of the series for the Phillies, while Cady is the sole hitless player of the Red Sox under similar conditions.

Attendance and Receipts.

The official attendance today was 20,306 and the total receipts amounted to $52,029.

After the President who was late getting to the park arrived, President William Baker, of the Philadelphia club handed a brand new ball to the Chief Executive. Umpire Rigler at the plate, turned toward Mr. Wilson expecting to have the honor of receiving the ball, but the President bounced it to Mayer in the pitcher's box.

Mayer's first offering was wide. Rigler called it a ball. After this ball had been presented to the President and the game got going again, Hooper and Rigler exchanged some conversation about a pitch that the umpire called a strike. Hooper finally got his base on balls. He took a long lead off the bag as Scott tried for a sacrifice. The batter popped a little to Luderus. With Speaker at the bat, Mayer pitching several wide ones to Burns thinking the runner might dash for second. But Hooper stood still and when Mayer got in a hole he had to cut the plate for Speaker, who rapped the next one to right for a single, Hooper going to third. Hoblitzell took a strike probably expecting Speaker to try to steal, but he didn't start.

Two Close Plays.

On the next pitched ball Speaker darted for second and was nipped by Burns. It was a close play and Niehoff made a grand stop of the catcher's throw. As Burns let go his rifle shot throw Hooper started home. Niehoff made a speedy return for what looked like an out and double play, but the little catcher fumbled the ball and Hooper was safe with Boston's first run. In sliding to the plate Hooper missed the rubber but managed to crawl back on all fours before Burns could put the ball on him. Hoblitzell singled to center field and went out trying to steal. Niehoff made another good catch of Burns' low throw and touched the runner in the nick of time. It also was a close play.

Stock, first up for the Quakers, had a ball and strike when he bounded a slow grounder which Scott scooped up on the run and threw the runner out. After getting two bad balls Bancroft struck out. Paskert shot a fast grounder to Hoblitzell who fumbled it, the ball bounding toward right field. Barry stopped it and threw to first, Foster covering the bag. Barry's fine fielding saved Hoblitzell an error.

Mayer's sharp curves were too much for Lewis in the second inning and he struck out. Gardner singled to left and in attempting the hit and run play, Barry fouled off two balls and was then struck out. Mayer batted down Thomas' sharp drive and threw the Red Sox catcher out. It was sharp work on Mayer's part.

With Cravath up, the fielders moved back, but he struck out on four pitched balls. Luderus, the Phillies' other heavy hitter, also fanned. Whitted took a strike, waited as three bad ones passed him, then hit weakly to Scott and was thrown out.

Mayer at Best in Third.

Mayer probably never pitched better ball than in the third inning. The Red Sox batters were helpless against his fast curves. Foster struck out. Burns dropped the ball, but tossed it to Luderus for the out. Hooper struck out on six pitched balls and Scott on five.

It was one, two, three again for the Phillies in their half of the third inning. Niehoff struck out, Burns sent a bounder to Hoblitzell, who was too far from the bag to make the out and he tossed the ball to Foster, who beat Burns to the base. Mayer fanned.

Speaker let Mayer's first offering in the fourth go by for a ball. The next he lifted to Bancroft. Hoblitzell sent a grounder to Luderus. Lewis singled to short center. Niehoff's throw in was too late to head off Lewis. Gardner flied to left field.

In the Phillies' fourth only three men faced Foster. The crowd began stamping their feet. Foster kept his nerve, however. Stock gave Speaker a difficult chance, which the speedy outfielder accepted. Bancroft sent a roller to Hoblitzell and was out. Foster again making the out. Paskert flied out to Hooper near the right field wall.

in the Red Sox fifth inning wan applause from the President. He took Barry's sharp rap ten feet behind third base and threw out the runner. Then he ran in and grabbed up Thomas' slow grounder and got the runner at first. With the count three and two on Foster, the Boston twirler crashed a terrific drive against the right field wall for two bases and the Boston rooters shouted. It was the first hit of the series for extra bases. Mayer purposely pitched four wide balls to Hooper, but Scott flied out to Whitted.

In the next inning Philadelphia's heavy artillery tied the score. Cravath smashed to left for two bases. Luderus hammered a double to right center and Cravath came home with the Phillies' only run. Things looked bad for the Red Sox. Foster, however, pulled himself together and stopped the hitting. Whitted was out on a slow grounder to Scott, Luderus taking third. Niehoff hit a sharp liner to Hoblitzell. Burns struck out.

The Red Sox's sixth inning was short. Speaker hoisted a pop fly to Bancroft, and Hoblitzell a high fly to Niehoff. Lewis struck out on three pitched balls.

Mayer was out on an easy grounder to Barry. But Barry had to extend himself to get Stock's sharp hit in short right field and throw him out. Bancroft singled to center, but Paskert grounded out, Gardner to Hoblitzell.

Boston got three on in the seventh, but sharp work behind Mayer prevented a score. Gardner flied to Whitted. Barry singled to left. Thomas hit through the pitcher's box, forcing out Barry. Foster singled to left, Thomas taking second. Janvrin went in to run for Thomas as Hooper came to bat. Hooper bounced a hit to the infield just out of Mayer's reach and the bases were full. Henricksen went to bat for Scott. Mayer sent up a strike and the nthe pinch hitter popped a fly to Luderus.

Brings Rooters to Feet.

All the Philadelphia rooters stood up as the Phillies came to bat in their half of the seventh, including the President. Janvrin went to shortstop for Scott and Cady succeeded Thomas behind the bat. Cravath struck out. Luderus sent a long fly to Hooper and Whitted fouled to Cady.

With air tight pitching and sharp fielding in the eighth it looked as if the game would go to extra innings. After a strike and one ball Speaker hit a weak grounder to Luderus who tossed him out to Mayer.

Hoblitzell made Cravath back almost to the right field wall for his fly and then Bancroft electrified the crowd by a wonderful one-hand stop of Lewis' drive, throwing him out. It was one of the best fielding plays of the series.

For Philadelphia, Niehoff went out, Gardner to Hoblitzell. Burns put up a fly to Janvrin and Mayer flew out to Speaker.

Gardner opened Boston's lucky ninth with a single to left. Barry flied to Paskert and Gardner went to second when Janvrin was thrown out by Mayer. Foster here came out with his third single, a sharp drive to center, and Gardner rushed for the plate. Paskert's mighty heave to head off Gardner was wide and Gardner was safe. Foster took second. The Royal Rooters from Boston threw hats and coats in the air as Gardner touched the plate. Hooper was called upon to bring Foster home, but he struck out.

The Phillies' half of the ninth was quickly over. Stock flied to Lewis. Bancroft struck out, second time. Paskert hit a long fly to Speaker who put the ball in his hip pocket as he raced to the club house and the shower bath.

A. & M. COLLEGE AND ROANOKE PLAY TIE GAME AT RALEIGH.

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 9.—A. & M. and Roanoke played a tie game of football here this afternoon, the final score being nothing to nothing.

Roanoke kicked off to A. & M., Duncan making a poor kick, and it was A. & M.'s ball in the middle of the field. By end runs and the aid of a forward pass, A. & M. carried the ball to the visitors' five-yard line, but here the visitors held and the ball went over. Roanoke tried the line and the ends but failed and then kicked, after this the ball see-sawing up and down the field.

In the second quarter Roanoke showed a varied attack and circled the Farmers' ends and ploughed through their line at will, losing the ball on a fumble in the shadow of the goal. Riddick, of A. & M., Bunting and Hoffman, for the visitors, were the stars of the game, Bunting proving a wonder at carrying the ball.

ARMY WINS THE GRIDIRON HONORS FROM GETTYSBURG

West Point, N. Y., Oct. 9.—The army won from Gettysburg today 22 to 0. The visitors presented a strong line that held back the Army's attack time and again but they failed to cope with a bewildering repertoire of four pass plays by the cadets. Keenness in following the ball also counted in the Army's favor.

Oliphant, right end, scored 16 of the Army's 22 points. The cadets lacked the pinch the gain through Gettysburg's line. Their kicking game also was poor.

ST. LOUIS AMERICANS WIN TWO GAMES FROM NATIONALS

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 9.—The Americans took a doubleheader from the Nations here today 5 to 1 and 6 to 2, bringing their total victories thus far to three. A fourth game was tied.

WHITE SOX WIN ANOTHER GAME IN THE CITY SERIES.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—The Chicago Americans shut out the local Nationals 5 to 0 today and made the series three to one in their favor. John Collins hit a home run with the bases filled in the third, just after Vaughn had walked a man and forced a man across the plate.

CAROLINA WINS OVER WAKE FOREST COLLEGE

On the Whole, a Good Game, With Plenty of "Pep."

Game at Chapel Hill Between the Baptist and the University Elevens a Most Exciting One—Final Score 35 to 0.

(Special Star Telegram.)

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 9.—In a most exciting game, Carolina today defeated Wake Forest to the tune of 35 to 0. Tandy kicked off for Carolina and Pace returned the ball to the 30-yard line. After Tayloe intercepted a forward pass, Tandy made the score 3 to 0 by a pretty field goal from the 30-yard line. Then the Baptists showed their fighting spirit and Carolina was unable to score again until near the end of the first half.

Then with only one half minute to play, Long went over for a touchdown. Tandy kicked goal.

In the second half, the Baptists weakened and Carolina made four touchdowns. Captain Tayloe's 90-yard run to the three-yard line through the whole Baptist team was the most stirring thrill of the game. For Carolina, Mob Long's slippery runs made great progress while the plunges of Reid and townsend told greatly. Love's pass catching was excellent.

For Wake Forest, Holding managed passes well and Parker played good ball all around. A main feature of the game was the great amount of punting, in which Long for Carolina clearly had the advantage. Other features were the many forward passes, both successful and unsuccessful, the excessive amount of penalties on both teams and the great number of fumbles. On the whole, however, it was a good game with plenty of "pep."

WORLD'S SERIES LOCALLY

Wilmington Fans Gather in Unprecedented Numbers to Get Score.

That the National game has lost none of its charm for Wilmington was abundantly evidenced yesterday afternoon when hundreds of people gathered in front of The Star building on Chestnut street and followed closely each play made in the great world's championship series between the Philadelphia Nationals and the Boston Americans, while every phone in the building jingled almost continuously, for the man at the other end who wanted to know "what's the score."

Added local interest is given the series this year from the fact that the "Phillies" trained here two years ago and the team, despite more or less ill-feeling engendered during their stay here, has many "backers" among the local fans.

The bulletins are given play by play this season both by megaphone and upon a large player-board which was devised and is being operated by Mr. Fred E. Walker, whose ingenuity is receiving high praise from the "thirty-third degree" fans, who, by means of the board, are able to follow the game as minutely almost as if they were on the grandstand on the Phillie lot. Mr. Walker is becoming a past master at the manipulation of the board and a play hardly leaves the keys of the typewriter from the leased wire in the building before the fans in the street are in full possession of the intricacies of the movement more than 500 miles away.

The teams now shift their scene of action from Philadelphia to Boston, but there will be no diminution of the bulletin service and friends of the paper are cordially invited to "drop around" and watch the board, hear the megaphone, or if they can't get here, to remember that there are two phones —51 and 61—always at their service.

Tires 30x3½
Also 30x3
With Three More Extras

Note that the Goodyear has for years held the leading place. It has proved its supremacy to hundreds of thousands. No other tire has ever won so many users.

Even the 30x3 size is a four-ply tire. And the All-Weather tread on it is made double-thick.

Added Size

This year we've increased our small-tire size. We have added 20 per cent to the air capacity—the factor which carries the load.

We have added 30 per cent to the side-wall rubber—just above the bead. That's where constant flexing breaks so many tires. And we've made new molds because a new design has shown increased endurance.

$317,000 Extra

These three new extras will this year cost us $317,000. They will save our users ten times that or more.

No like capacity was ever before embodied in a small-size tire. Yet this year we made another big price reduction.

Get these new extras when you next buy tires. See for yourself what they add to your mileage. Don't take smaller, thinner tires when Goodyears offer these things.

Catarrh a Blood Disease S.S.S. Drives It From Your System

Because Catarrh affects the nose and throat, causing sores in the nostrils, stoppage of air-passages and gathering in the throat, it has been common practice to treat Catarrh by lotions, washes and sprays applied to these parts. This mode of treatment is entirely wrong. It cannot give permanent relief, and it is liable to irritate and aggravate the trouble. Catarrh cannot be trifled with. If allowed to run on it will disease the bronchial tubes, settle on the lungs, the stomach—indeed it is a very serious disease. Don't treat it locally. The fact that it causes headaches is proof that it is caused by impure and diseased blood. The one treatment that has proved effective in the treatment of Catarrh is S. S. S., it is the greatest blood purifier and blood tonic known. It relieves the cause of Catarrh by the process of renourishing the blood, renewing its strength and vigor, giving new life to the red blood corpuscles and stimulating the flow so that it has the vitality to throw off the poison and germs from the system. It is literally a blood bath. You quickly feel results. Headaches disappear, the gathering in the throat stops, the nostrils heal—before you hardly realize it you are well. S. S. S. is a natural blood tonic and has proven effective in the treatment of all blood affections. Eczema, tetters, rash, Scrofula. Get S. S. S. at your druggist's. THE WEEK IN WILMINGTON THEATRES

The following criticism of "It Pays to Advertise," which comes to the Academy of Music on next Thursday, October 14th, was clipped from The Virginian-Pilot and Norfolk Landmark of October 5. Quite naturally plays that promote laughter are more popular than those of the somber sort, because most of us have troubles of our own sufficiently burdensome to give good reason for seeking mirth-provoking amusement. "It Pays to Advertise," the farce that ran for all last year at the George M. Cohan theatre in New York, is one of the most successful laugh promoters it has been the pleasure of the writer to see. It came to the Colonial last night, and will be presented there again this afternoon and tonight. Usually it is customary to give at the foot of the review a reference to future performance but this time it is stated in the beginning for the benefit of those who didn't see it last night. They have two more opportunities to enjoy a most delightful farce."

"It Pays to Advertise" is a business play. Hence its appeals to men. The plot is also sufficiently romantic to make a strong appeal to the feminine portion of the audience."

"Frank Allworth as Ambrose Peel, the press agent of a theatrical company, who engages into the soap business and does some bright and clever advertising, makes the most of a part brimming with comedy. As Cyrus Martin, president of the soap trust and father of Rodney Martin, who starts in opposition to his father in the soap business as Elmer Grandin, is also excellently cast. Harold Vermilyea is the Rodney Martin of the piece and capable throughout. Adele Rowland is charming as Mary Grayson, who takes the contract to stir up the soap king's son so that he will work. Miss Rowland was popular with last night's audience from her first appearance. Elza Frederick, as a countess—bogus—also deserves mention, and the entire company is up to standard."

"It Pays to Advertise" is one of the most enjoyable offerings of the season." The prices will range from 50 cents to $1.50. Seats will go on sale Tuesday morning at Plummer's.

The Week at the Bijou.

Just cast your eye on the large advertisement elsewnere in this issue giving a feature from each days' programme at the Bijou for the coming week, and you'll see the greatest array of big things ever presented to Wilmington in a single week.

Tomorrow the big week starts with a great three-reel thriller, with the inimitable Marie Walcamp playing the leading role opposite her new leading man, Arthur Singleton. "The Surrender" is the title and it is one of the biggest heart-interest productions of the year. One of the most exciting scenes takes place in a white slaver's den, where a young girl, who has tired of monotony of an honest man's love and her parent's fond guardianship, breaks away from home ties and falls into the clutches of a gang of white slavers. When the girl finds that she has been trapped and that her honor is at stake, she fights like an enraged tiger, but is fast succumbing when the man who loves her despite her rebuffs, smashes in the door and fairly snatches her out of danger. It is positively the most hair-raising scene seen in many months.

Also featuring Monday's bill is a great Nestor comedy feature "Their Happy Honeymoon" with Billie Rhodes and Neal Burns, with a laugh to every flash.

There will also be two other big ones, making the usual big Monday bill.

Broadway Feature at Grand Tomorrow.

The Grand offers three great features for the first half of the week that cannot be equalled. Tomorrow the star attraction will be a three reel Broadway star feature by the Vitagraph company entitled "One Performance Only." This picture is exceptionally good and has won praise from every critic throughout the country where it has been shown. Following is the criticism from the Motion Picture World. The idea on which this three-part Broadway star feature is based is excellent and it has been carried out with considerable skill. It is not going too far to say that the picture is continuously interesting and steadily increases in dramatic force. An impersonator, famous on the vaudeville stage, is induced to impersonate a wealthy man who has a necklace of great value in his possession. There is an unusual robbery and a complex set of circumstances leading to the capture of the culprits. The picture is in all respects well done. The cast includes Thomas R. Mills, Lionel Adams, Farry McGarry, Templer Saxe, Eulalie Jensen, Stanley Dark and Charles Eldridge.. The Broadway star features need no introduction to the Grand patrons nor do the producers namely, the Vitagraph company, whose pictures are second to none, ask your friends about the great shows the Grand is showing for the jitney price. Just impossible to see any better, drop in tomorrow and convince yourself. In addition to the big feature a "Ham Comedy" will be shown entitled "Ham Among the Redskins." It's a rousing sidesplitter. This is not all you will see. We have a few surprises to show you on the "Shadow Box Screen" that will surely meet with your approval. Tuesday's feature is sure a hummer. It's a big four reel Mutual masterpiece entitled "The Reward" featuring pretty Bessie Barriscale, the picture was made under the direction of Thomas R. Ince who ranks among the greatest of all photoplay producers. The Reward depicts the chorus girl's life back of stage. It's a human and powerful drama, and the admission is only five cents. So how can you afford to miss such a wonderful photoplay when the inducement is so great.

Sam Bernard at Royal.

When the Famous Players recently announced that they had induced Sam Bernard, the world's foremost character comedian, to appear on the Paramount programme, the news aroused much enthusiasm among photoplay fans all over the country. If Mr. Bernard's bare consent to appear on the screen created this amount of interest, imagine the effect of the news that the celebrated comedian had completed his first impersonation, as "Poor Schmaltz," and that this great comedy feature is the current release on the Paramount programme to be seen at the Royal Monday.

Sam Bernard is said to be the highest salaried comedy star on the stage today, and has made hundreds of thousands laugh. With the wider latitude of the screen, millions will now be enabled to follow his side-splitting antics and his inimitable portrayal of comedy situations.

Sam Bernard's debut in the movies as "Poor Schmaltz" is destined to be a "howling" success Monday at the Royal, for it's the first big comedy that the Paramount has released which is a "regular" laugh maker—with all the ludicrous slapstick antics that bring the laughs every time. It's one continuous ovation of smiles, laughs and guffaws, and does not allow a letup for the entire length of the picture. This unusual Famous Players fun-film is a permanent injunction against the blues, and throughout its entire length is guaranteed to create more laughs than any other three comedies ever produced in motion pictures.

Capturing Lions.

Few who see wild animals in cages realize the vast amount of trouble, danger and expense necessary to get them there. The greatest danger lies in capturing the wild animals in their native country. With the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus, which will give two performances in Wilmington Monday, October 18, there are several hundred wild animals, most of which were captured in the forests and jungles of their native country.

There is no more ticklish or dangerous task than tracking lions in the vast Nubian deserts. The scorching sun pours down with such force that few men can stand it. The effect on the eyes is blinding. There is little or no shade. The wariest and most careful hunter may be tracking an animal he is seeking, who may spring on him at any moment.

For capturing full-grown lions large traps of various forms are used. One trap is square, one of the sides lifting upon a spring like the old-fashioned mouse trap. This trap is baited with a piece of fresh meat, and as soon as the lion has entered the trap the door shuts down and he is a prisoner. More than a score of lions with the Carl Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus were captured in this manner.

Elephants are generally caught in nooses. A number of men surround the elephant after they have previously formed a circle of fire about the beast. The fire gets closer and closer to the elephant, and finally a noose is thrown over his head. He is then securely tied to a tree and allowed to remain there until quiet. Tame elephants are then brought into use, and appear to be sort of persuasive in making the huge animals tractable.

In catching snakes various devices are used. One is to set the grass on fire in a circle where it is known that snakes have hiding places. As they rush out they are caught in large nets mounted on wooden hoops to which is attached a large bag.

"St. Elmo" Monday Night—Victoria.

Ladies will be admitted free to the Victoria tomorrow night when the well known "Harme Associate Players" will offer an elaborate scenic production of "St. Elmo," a dramatization of the well known book of the same name.

In offering ladies free it is upon the condition that they are accompanied by one paid 30 cents ticket, which must be purchased before 6 P. M. Monday at the Victoria ticket office.

"St. Elmo" is one of the most widely read novels of the past several years. It has been reprinted in many editions so great has been the demand for the book, and the dramatization which will be offered here follows the lines and scenes of the book very closely.

The production will be a most elaborate one. The scenes and the staging will be one of the features of the play. Mr. Williams, the artist, is busily engaged putting the finishing touches to a magnificient scenic equipment. Nothing will be left undone to make this one of the banner offerings of the "Harme Players."

"St. Elmo" will be the offering for Monday and Tuesday night. For Wednesday matinee and night and Thursday night the play will be a grand revival of "East Lynne," while Friday night and Saturday matinee and night the offering will be the well known dramatic success "Jessie James, The Missouri Outlaw."

With this deversified list of plays every one will find something to please them at the Victoria this week, and the programme can be said to be one of "real old time favorites."

Mrs. Tired Housewife is asked not to forget that the company at the Victoria is going to give all the ladies free admission Monday night so that husband may reserve his seats before 6 P. M. for that is the only string to the offer.

MIDDLE DISTRICT BAPTIST ASSOCIATION IN SESSION.

Annual Meeting Being Held at Adoram Church, Near Wallace.

(By J. M. Newkirk.)

Wallace, N. C., Oct. 8.—The Middle District Missionary Baptist Association is now in session at Adoram church, Rev. C. T. Underwood is pastor. Praise service was conducted by Revs. J. T. Deans and J. M. Newkirk. The spirit of Christ pervaded and every delegate and preacher seems to vie with each other in trying to make the association a success. The old sage of Kelly, N. C., Rev. H. Peterson, is presiding and as usual has the work well in hand. That gifted knight of the quill, Rev. Dr. W. H. Moore, of Wilmington, is the secretary and is keeping a record of the proceedings, yet has time to get in a word edgewise when the boys are about to edge away from the old paths of rectitude. Revs. J.D. Cowans, M. R. Robinson and Brother James Pearsall compose the finance committe. Prof. Wesley Jones, of Burgaw, and Prof. J. M. Powers are reading church letters.

The delegation was the largest in the history of the association for the first day. According to programme, the introductory sermon was to have been by Rev. J. D. Cowans, but he did not appear in time, so Rev. C. Goodman was appointed in his stead with Rev. S. Devane as alternate. Rev. Goodman preached a good sermon. At the close of the sermon a collection was taken. Dinner was served out on the grounds and everybody seemed delighted.

The weather is very inclement, rain is falling. The roads are bad. The chilling of October reminds one that autumn is here, but in spite of rain, mud and the panic, a great crowd assembled at the church to hear the temperance sermon. Rev. I. M. Powers, of Wallace, was billed to preach at 8 P. M. He chose for a text Proverbs 23:21, and proved by several divine writers that drunkenness is not Godliness; that a drunkard is not a fit person to trust and that no man known to be a winebibber should be trusted with public office. He declared, that preachers, teachers, school committeemen should be temperate men and that he wouldn't send his children to school to a man who was a drunkard. A collection was taken amounting to $10.

FOR NATIONAL CHILD LABOR LAW

Connecticut Manufacturer Favors a 16-Year Limit.

Bridgeport, Conn., Oct. 7.—"We need a national law that will keep all children in school until they are 16," Mr. D. H. Warner, one of the largest manufacturers in Connecticut, told a representative of the National Child Labor Committee the other day. Mr. Warner is the head of the Warner Bros. Corset Company, of Bridgeport, who recently put his 4,000 emloyes on a 48-hour week although the state law permits him to operate 55 hours a week.

"The manufacturer who employs children of 14 or 15 years does not benefit himself because children are not good workers; he does not benefit the community because he harms the child, and it is the good of the community, not the individual manufacturer, that must be considered in this question of child labor.

"I never employ children under 16 if I can get older workers because I consider the years between 14 and 16 the most impressionable ones of a child's life and I know that the factory influence is a bad one, no matter how careful the employer may be. Those years should be spent in school and in the open, not in the factory where physical, mental, moral and financial growth is stunted. If we must have men with a college education in the executive positions, it is equally necessary to have a proportionate amount of training throughout the entire force. I find it extremely difficult to get intelligent girls for responsible positions. I have tried to train them but their lack of education makes it impossible for them to go beyond a certain point.

"It is true, of course, that poverty makes it necessary for some children to go to work before they are 16. I think it might be advisable to permit exceptions to the 16-year limit for such children who are over 14 and are declared physically fit for work by a physician. Cases of actual poverty are not very numerous, however. Many children are sent to work because their parents are not poor but avaricious."

TOP O' THE MORNING

There is nothing like the first glance we get at duty, before there has been any special pleading of our affections or inclinations. Duty is never uncertain at first. It is only we have got involved in the mazes and sophistries of wishing that things were otherwise than they are, that it seems indistinct. Considering a duty is often only explaining it away. Deliberation is often only dishonesty. God's guidance is plain, when we are true.

—F. W. ROBERTSON.

Now they've got anti-dump on the brain. Got to have something to be scared of.

The Raleigh Times has a Bard on its staff, and, of course, he is bound to venture into the pometrical realm now and then.

How many pupils are enrolled in Wilmington's private schools, in addition to those enrolled in the public schools?

A Chicago woman says if she had to give up either her husband or her dog, she would hold on to the dog. Probably the old man has been making a dog of himself.

The Republicans hope Colonel Roosevelt will take a notion to go away next year with the fell determination of discovering something that has been overlooked by Doc Cook and others.

"These second marriages always turn out wrong," say the married ladies. They hate the idea. Quite natural, till they happen to be charming widows. They never thought of that.

The Allies seem to doubt even Greece. Greece prefers to be neutral, but the Allies want her help and among other arguments brought to bear on her are a bunch of war ships in Grecian waters.

The chamber of deputies of Haiti has ratified the treaty which the United States insisted upon. The matter was thoroughly argued, but the United States marines got the best of it regardless of the Haitien sophistries urged against it.

The Jacksonville Times-Union remarks that "a New York woman says she can't live on less than $25,000 a year." She is right. We couldn't pay expenses on $25,000 a year in view of the fact that we would like to go on a world tour once a year.

Would women notaries be expected to perform the functions without fees so's to save money for their regular employers? A notary depending on fees might find himself or herself in a position in which the competition would make lucrativeness a negligible part of the service.

The election of a candidate and his wife as Democratic and Republican members respectively of the Town School Board at Bolton, Conn., is a hint of what may be expected under equal suffrage. Here, indeed, is a suggestive example of a house divided against itself by the pernicious influence of the ballot for women.—New York World.

Some folks think asphyxiation in war is horrible, but we know men who prefer to take chances on being asphyxiated rather than run the risk of being mutilated by shells and bullets. One advantage about being asphyxiated is that nobody would have to gather up the scraps of a man after a battle. Why not rule shells and shot out of war and make it more civilized?

In the South Sea Islands a girl marries the man who has more cocoanuts than the other fellow. The largest number of cocoanuts brings in the most money, so the South Sea Island girls simply follow the same rule that our own beauties do when the man with the most dough is the one they pick. Girls marry for either cocoanuts or money, for the same same reason.

THE CANE SYRUP INDUSTRY

Following the line of greater crop diversification, the importance of which was acutely emphasized by the conditions in the South a year ago brought about by the European war and the subsequent demoralization of the cotton market, the farmers of Robeson county went in this year for the production of a crop to which little attention had been given in the last dozen years, but which some twenty years ago was considered an important part of the farm economy. We have reference to the growing of cane and the production of syrup for family use.

Some twenty years ago it was the rule among the farmers in "the State of Robeson" and to an extent in other counties, to plant a "cane patch" of from a quarter to an acre, depending somewhat upon the size of the family and the extent of the farm operations. The purpose was to make enough syrup to supply the family and the farm help throughout the year, thus avoiding the necessity of buying molasses. When the syrup was properly made from cane that was cut at the right stage of ripening, the syrup was superior to the best molasses for table use and a splendid substitute for the syrups sold by the grocers—far better than corn syrups and a satisfying substitute for maple syrup.

With the introduction of cane growing came the cane mill and the development of the syrup making industry. In every neighborhood there was one or more cane mills, in many instances being operated by those who had cotton gins and grist mills. The mill consisted of an iron case set upon a substantial foundation four or five feet high, enclosing three perpendicular revolving iron rollers, from the main one of which extended a shaft connected above with a pole some twenty feet in length, to the end of which a horse was harnessed as if to a plow. The horse walked in a circle around the mill turning the rollers, while a person, usually a boy in his teens, fed the stalks of cane into the mill, thrusting the ends between the rollers, which pressed out the juice, this streaming into a receptacle, from which it was poured into flat cooking pans set upon a brick furnace a few feet distant from the mill. The cooking of syrup was an art and required close and constant attention. Two persons and a horse were required for operating a mill. The miller took part of the syrup for toll.

By this means he had syrup to supply all those in the neighborhood who did not produce cane. The price in those days was around 25 cents a gallon.

In addition to the syrup, valuable feed for hogs and other stock was the cane stalk. These heads were cut clusters, or "heads," on the top of the cane stalk. These heads are cut off and stored for feed. The "fodder" was stripped off in the field and plowed under, as it was considered of no value for feed.

With higher prices for cotton, the cane syrup industry dwindled and many of the farmers ceased to cultivate cane at all. Now, when diversification is again the watchword, the Robeson farmers are producing syrup as a profitable factor in the scheme of crop diversification and it is said that more cane was grown in that county this year than ever before. If it pays the Robeson farmers to "raise cane," why would it not be just as profitable for all Eastern Carolina farmers?

SYSTEMATIC PROMOTION.

The objects for promotion by boosting and encouragement are those which produce wealth and contribute to the prosperity of a city or a community or a state. Among these are agriculture, industry and commerce and all the kindred branches of each, all finally converging into each other as a matter of business as well as a matter of course. It is no new thing for The Star to boost all along this line, and Star readers can testify to the fact that we have been as consistent and persistent a boomer of agriculture as we have been of commerce and industry, for the simple reason that they are all combined in our economic prosperity.

Whatever are the sources of wealth or of production, from either factory or farm or trade, those are the things for all live communities to promote and encourage. Usually a city considers that it has accomplished a great achievement if during the year it has increased its manufacturing output, or its commerce, or its business, or its bank clearings, but most of the commercial organizations certainly overlook the fact that development of all the agricultural adaptabilities of their "back country" is just as important as getting factories or creating more wealth by commerce and business. A prosperous back country developed into a wealth and business producing area may add just as much to a city's progress as can manufacturing or commerce, but it is all in the aggregate that goes to count up in the development and prosperity of a community or a section. If we gain a million dollars from manufacturing, or commerce, or agriculture, it is all the same to a trading center and its tributary territory. Since that is true, commercial bodies or promoting bodies or associations are now widening their scope of promotion. Agriculture is of prime importance to any town or city, and so it is not new to The Star to present this view of it, as taken from a handsome booklet just issued by the International Harvester Company:

"The opportunity of the town lies in the country. The country can get along without the town, but no town ever has or ever will, be permanently prosperous where the land is poor. The town is built on farm profits; on what farmers produce in excess of their home needs. In fact, towns are liabilities, not assets—consumers, not legitimate producers. Towns are the natural evolution and outgrowth of necessity—places to store and distribute the world's surplus products through the channels of commerce. There is but one road to permanent city building—that road leads to the farm. Business is so sympathetic, so sensitive to crop production, that the forecast of a poor wheat or corn crop affects the markets of the world. When the harvest fields smile, towns wax fat, and factories increase the pay roll. Corn, wheat and hay, beef, pork and poultry—these are the soil builders, the home builders, the builders of great cities.

"The old fashioned chamber of commerce, with its cash bonuses and free factory sites, is rapidly passing away. Instead of grabbing business from each other towns are beginning to look to the country, out in the fields of growing corn and wheat and hay. Here lies the opportunity—for the great city, strange as it may seem, is out in the country, hidden in the fertility of the soil. A successful hay campaign will bring factories to the town. Hay means beef and pork, which beckon the packing house and storage plant. More corn means cereal mills, glucose factories, starch factories. Flour mills locate in wheat producing sections. Creameries follow the dairy cow, and the truck patch calls for the canning factory.

"Let us have more chambers of agriculture and commerce and fewer 'commercial clubs.' Let us create wealth from the opportunities at home, and not subtract it from other communities. We must not forget that every farm is a factory, and that in every state there are thousands of these factories which need our best thought and effort to make them productive.

"The purpose of this publication is to create a deeper interest among the members of chambers of commerce and other organizations in their agricultural and commercial problems. The attention of the reader is called to what Alabama, Arkansas, Texas and other states are doing in this direction. What these states have done, your state can do.

"We will furnish speakers and competent men to assist you in organizing and conducting agricultural campaigns We will plan and work with you in whatever stands for the development of your community, county or state."

The truths stated are so convincing that comment is not necessary. It is only necessary to state that if we neglect our agricultural development we have overlooked one of the powerful elements of our progress and prosperity. If a county or a state increase its production on the farm, it has added that much wealth to that produced by its factories or its mines or its commerce, or by any other means under the sun. That is the reason why The Star has attributed so much importance to boosting the agriculture of the Nation's Garden Spot, with this favored region as the premier portion of the whole.

The booklet from which we quote is one issued by the Harvester Company which has not only boosted but promoted and encouraged diversified agriculture in the South. It has especially done this constructive work in Alabama and other states, but we hope it will not overlook North Carolina in its great campaign during the coming year. In the booklet a hint is thrown out to organized bodies for a new promotion work and it will enable them to get busy on a new line of activity worth just as much as any.

We must not merely boost manufacturing, commerce and agriculture, but we must promote and encourage and assist along all lines. The thing that counts effectually is not talking the booster language and manifesting a progressive spirit merely, but it is method and practical work that we should do on every line of endeavor that will develop Wilmington and its back country in all directions. We certainly ought to co-operate along practical lines with every agricultural section that adds increment to Wilmington in any particular.

RAG CHEWING CAMPAIGNS

In South Carolina it has been the custom prior to the state primary election to appoint campaign meetings in the various counties so all the candidates could attend and be heard by the people. It has developed some of the bitterest antagonisms within the Democratic party for the reason that the candidates for the various offices have felt called upon to blackball each other before a constituency which each was endeavoring to capture. The campaign meetings were converted into rag chewing contests (and sometimes ear chewing contests?) instead of joint debates or discussions of vital interest to the people.

By this method of campaigning, partisanship was developed and factions created, evidently to the hurt of the Democratic party. It is a wonder to us how the party has survived the strife so engendered. We have often been amused by the newspaper reports of the compaign meetings. They were the occasion for "charges" to be brought by the candidates against each other, and charge 1, charge 2, and charge ad infinitum seemed to be the tenor of the oratory on display. Each candidate seemed to have acquired the idea that it was up to him to "take the the hide off'n" the other fellow, or to "skin" his opponent, as Senator Tillman, of "pitchfork" fame, used to call it when he verbally removed the cuticle from some luckless opponent too dignified and amiable to stand up and engage in a ribald personal exchange of quasi-billingsgate, close akin to libel.

We are glad that the North Carolina Democracy has never engaged in such a tiresome, useless and dangerous practice. Evidently South Carolina is tired of it, too, and there is a loud call for a discontinuance of the "rantangles" so peculiar to red hot primary campaign in the Palmetto State. It never struck us as a sane way to appeal to an intelligent constituency, and there is no wonder that such papers as the Columbia State and the Charleston News and Courier are endeavoring to hammer down a political system that has become both effete and disgusting to citizens of orderly temperament.

Your rag chewing campaigns and your partisan political harangues, misscalled "joint debates," no longer serve the purpose of enlightening the people on the real issues upon which they should vote with intelligence and patriotism as their only guide.

THERE WILL BE SOMETHING DOING

There will be something doing in Wilmington during three days in November, notably November 16 to 19, just on the eve of Thanksgiving Day. Those three November days have been decided on for the Nation's Garden Spot fair, combined in Wilmington's annual corn show, floral fair and "Made in Wilmington" exhibit. That is what the fair committee announces, along with plans for broadening the scope and attraction of the occasion.

In order for the committee to make the show all that its ambitious scheme contemplates, it is up to every commercial and civic organization in the city to join at once in the plans and co-operate energetically in scoring a big success. This is the third year of the corn show and it broadens each successive season, the purpose now being to comprehensively enlarge its reach and make it an annual event.

The affair is to be made one representative of the agricultural, industrial and civic life of this fair tidal section, although it is to be largely an exhibition of one of the special resources and adaptabilities of our tidal region. Of course, there will be a specially fine corn exhibit, along with a great variety of other garden and field products, for which attractive prizes are offered. All the counties in this section are invited to participate.

One of the features of the three days of jubilation will be a "Made in Wilmington" parade, an industrial exhibit that will surprise our home people as well as our visitors. The Rotary Club will have charge of this feature and already forty Wilmington manufacturers have notified the Rotarians that they intend to be represented. Thirty or forty more are expected to do the same, and it matters not what is manufactured here, the parade management wants it in line. It will be good for both the city and the individual industries for a pronounced success to be made of this feature.

There will be a beautiful floral and home science exhibit, and it will be a splendid opportunity for the canning and preserving girls in this section to get a place in the fair. There will be music, of course, and addresses by distinguished and competent speakers.

There is no telling what we can make of the November fair, if all the people of Wilmington and the surrounding country will participate in it and not only make of it a stirring community event but a potential means of promoting the progress of this entire ideal section.

CURRENT COMMENT.

If the shortage of the crop had anything to do with it there is a point that the farmers should bear in mind.—Durham Herald.

We are loudly asked "What is America doing about the atrocities in Armenia?" What is Turkey doing about the massacres in Mexico, and what is Europe doing about the lynching of Frank? What did America do about the atrocities in Belgium?—Jacksonville Times-Union.

The re-election of Mrs. Eugene Little as president of the North Carolina division, United Daughters of the Confederacy, was a tribute which will be of appreciation throughout the State. No braver officer than her father, Col. Risden Tyler Bennett, was identified with the Confederate army, and in the South there is no woman more loyal to the cause than Mrs. Little. Her continuance at the head of the organization is sufficient assurance that it will come to the next annual gathering with enthusiasm of spirit abated not one jot, with faith beautified possibly a shade brighter, and in heart and soul and thought as noble as ever.—Charlotte Observer.

The commissioners of New Hanover county have passed an order for the equipment of all public roads in that county with sign posts. We wonder what method of argument or persuasion was used to induce this action on part of the commissioners? The Observer would be glad to be made acquainted with the process, so that it might try it on Mecklenburg, and by the same token, on every county in which it circulates. Wilmington having led the way, we may expect other counties to fall into line, but it is a movement this paper would be glad to see of general adoption throughout the State. A good road without the sign board is pretty much like a dipper without a handle.—Charlotte Observer.

In September of last year The Herald was wideawake trying to find buyers for cotton at 10 cents a pound. It was successful in finding purchasers for about 40 bales. The editor of The Herald wrote about 20 of the large Northern and Western dailies setting forth the real conditions in the cotton belt and the real value of cotton to men and women who had money to invest in it. Among those who bought through the editor's solicitation was Clark M. Huston, of Iowa. Mr. Huston had read the letter in the Chicago Tribune. On Tuesday afternoon of this week it was the editor's pleasure to sell Mr. Huston's cotton for 11 3-4 cents per pound, which price will net Mr. Huston more than he would have received from a like sum deposited in a savings bank. Thus Mr. Huston is benefited and a deserving but poor tenant received $20 more than the market price for his cotton. That is the sort of co-operation that men with capital can give to others in time of stress. Everybody knew that cotton must ultimately advance, but thousands of men could not profit by it because they had no capital.—Manning (S. C.) Herald.

Mr. Bryan is correct in his opinion that woman suffrage will become a national question, whether or not it should, as soon as enough states have granted the ballot to women to make it likely that a suffrage amendment to the constitution would be ratified. And that time may not be very far in the future. Eleven states already accord full voting privileges to women and in another they vote for candidates for some offices. New Jersey seems likely to join the eleven October 19, and suffrage elections will be held this fall ... New York, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, also. Not all of these four Eastern states may give victories for the suffragists but even close defeats would encourage them to try again a little later on and tend to weaken the opposition. The South is in accord with the opinion of President Wilson that woman suffrage is a state question and should remain so.—Savannah News.

If grand juries all over the State were to get busy, and solicitors would do their sworn duty in the matter of prosecutions, the Wilmington officials who have been indicted for giving money and other things of value to secure political support, would have plenty of company. The use of money and other corrupt influences in primaries and elections has been practiced until it is in too many instances accepted as a matter of course as a part of the dirt in politics. Elections not only can be, but should be, conducted fairly and honestly. The public welfare and the safety of the citizen demands it. Judge Rountree is to be commended for demanding the enforcement of the law and if so-called "good citizens" have the public welfare at heart they will not only uphold the hands of men like Judge Rountree, who would expose the corruptionists and drive them from place and power, but they will exert themselves to help. The trouble is that too many men who think they are good citizens, but who are not, either condone the corruption as something they think must be endured, or they stand aloof with professions of holiness and say they can't afford to take part in "dirty politics." The man who refuses to stand up against admitted and known wrongs in State and society is an indirect aider and abetter of these things. He is not a good citizen and his very conduct shows the hollowness of his professions.—Statesville Landmark.

The University News Letter announces that Greensboro's 38 per cent of home owners constitute a greater proportion of its total population than the similar contingent in any other of the State's seven largest cities. It approaches within respectable distance of Spokane's 51.3 per cent, which has made that city the greatest home-owning town in the United States. The figures for other North Carolina towns are Charlotte, Asheville and Wilmington, 34 per cent each; Raleigh, 30 per cent; Durham 29 per cent, and Winston-Salem, 28 per cent. It is hard to imagine a more pleasant pre-eminence than leadership in the proportion of homes owned by their occupants. It is a badge of prosperity, to begin with, an indication of thrift that speaks well for the future of the city financially. But it is more than that; it is evidence that a large proportion of the citizens have a financial, as well as a patriotic stake in the progress of the town. A handful of influential and patriotic citizens can do wonders for a town—have done wonders for this very town of Greensboro—then what is impossible to 38 per cent of the population working together? Yet the proportion is not what it might be. Even if we do hold the leadership now, why stop at 38 per cent? Widespread ownership of homes is a solid foundation on which to erect a great municipal structure, and 51.3 per cent is better than 38 per cent. If it is good to lead North Carolina, it is better to lead the United States—what is that we hear about the 'steenth series being now open?—Greensboro News.

M'CLAMMY HAS THROWN HIS HAT INTO RING

Formal Announcement of His Candidacy for Congress.

Well Known Wilmington Lawyer Outlines Platform—Willing to Discuss Issues Before People With All Candidates.

The tentative announcement several months ago that Herbert McClammy, Esq., a leading member of the Wilmington bar, would be a candidate for Congress in the Sixth congressional district, was reduced yesterday to a definite certainty when Mr. McClammy gave out an authorized interview stating that he is in the race to the finish.

It has generally been believed by friends of Mr. McClammy from the beginning that at the proper time he would make a definite announcement as to his candidacy, but it was not until yesterday that he finally set at rest the speculation that has been rife as to his entrance into the race. Some years ago Mr. McClammy made a strong run for the place and since that time he has come to be known not only all over the district but throughout the State. As an attorney he has for a number of years been in the front rank of his profession in Wilmington and as a citizen he has always stood for what he conceived to be right, regardless of the effect this or that action might have upon his political fortunes. He will make a very strong bid for the support of the people in every county in the district.

In making his formal announcement yesterday Mr. McClammy said:

"Some time in the early part of the year, I stated in conversation with some friends who were urging me to run for Congress from this district, that I would probably become a candidate and since then I have seen no good reason for changing my mind and will now make every honest effort to secure the nomination at the primary to be held in June, 1916.

"I have always believed that the voters of the district should have every opportunity of judging the relative merits and qualifications of each candidate who aspired to the position and so far as I am concerned they shall be given the opportunity and I am willing to discuss the issues before the people with each and every candidate who is now in the race or who may hereafter enter the contest.

"My opinion is, that the underlying principle that moved the Legislature to pass the State-wide primary law, was to do away with 'machine politics' in order that the people might exercise their judgment untrammeled and uninfluenced as to their choice in the selection of a representative in Congress.

"I do not believe that any particular locality can lay any special claim to the representative in Congress, either on account of its commercial power, its manufacturing interest or its agricultural pursuits. But I do believe that the representative in Congress should be a man who has the interest of the whole district at heart, and if he discharges the duties incident to the office, then no particular locality will have cause to complain, for the reason that he will be carrying into execution those time-honored principles of Democracy, 'Equal justice to all and special privileges to none.'

"If elected I shall fight for the principles of sound Democracy and stand for the pledges of the Democratic platform, both State and National.

"I shall fight for the preservation of the home against the attack of any foe.

"I shall defend the weak and the helpless against oppression, and against greed and graft.

"I shall stand at all times for National progress, and those reforms that are beneficial to the masses.

"I shall advocate legislation against injustice and corruption, and will fight for a clean government both in State and Nation.

"I shall stand for legislation that will protect the farmer against oppression, and will strive to restore to him every right that is denied him.

"I shall endeavor at all times to build up the district with commercial, agricultural and industrial enterprises that will be beneficial to all.

"I stand for Woodrow Wilson, believing that he is the man of the hour, and that the people of the Nation should be grateful for his achievements.

TEST DRIVING ORDINANCE

Many Cases Before Recorder Yesterday and More Tomorrow—Decision Tuesday—Other Cases.

Violators of the city driving ordinance were arrested in large numbers the past week. One lone defendant meekly paid the costs Friday, but to the Recorder's astonishment, the police industriously continued to make arrests and there are a number to be heard Monday. Recorder Empie thought best to defer decision until next Tuesday after he had further time to look into the situation.

The ordinance was enacted on July 12, of this year, and went into effect immediately, making it a crime punishable by a fine, for any vehicle to turn between street crossings on Front street between Grace and Market. In a number of instances it was shown that people in business along this section, in hauling to and from their establishments and in using the alleys, often caused more obstruction in following the law than in otherwise, to say nothing of the inconvenience to themselves. It was stated in court that in New York, where the same law is in effect, it is interpreted so as to permit a vehicle reaching its destination for business to turn, even in the middle of the block.

Those tried yesterday were Clayton Westbrook and Richard Shew, white, and William More, J. H. Hawes, Oliver Johnson, Julian Lee, Charles Sikes, George Jones, colored, all recognized. Robert Jarrell, white, and John Bowen and Robert Willie, colored, are to have a hearing tomorrow. It is probable that their cases will be held open and given judgment with the others Tuesday.

Lizzie Gibson, colored, drew two sentences amounting to seven months, on charges of larceny, the first for six months and the other for 30 days. Rosa McKnight, colored, drew a sentence of 60 days on a charge of larceny.

Charles Phifer, charged with receiving stolen goods, was given trial, but on account of insufficient evidence, the case was dismissed. Rodie Lyon, alias Rodie Walker, was found guilty of carrying a concealed weapon and given her choice of paying $25 and costs, or going to the farm for six months. She is given until Wednesday to decide which she will do.

Susan Lane, colored, will have a hearing next Thursday on a charge of taking unlawful possession of a house. Several who were to have had a hearing on charges of violating the tax ordinance, will have a hearing next Saturday instead.

NATURAL EDUCATION SCHOOL.

Miss Margaret Peirce Opens Institution for Training of Teachers.

Miss Margaret Peirce, of Warsaw, has rented the brick residence at No. 218 South Third street, and has opened a school, using the new Winifred Sackville Stoner method. It is to be a training school, the first of its kind south of Pittsburg. Miss Peirce has two applicants from Baltimore and one from Knoxville, Tenn., where she has recently conducted an observation school of a few weeks. Also there are a number of young ladies in the city planning to take up the work.

A college degree or equivalent normal training and a knowledge of child psychology are requisite to any one desiring to complete the course within four months. Some knowledge of music, too, is required. For this reason Miss Peirce has with her faculty, Miss Marie Plowden, who also assists with the children's songs. The demand for Natural Education teachers in the North is greater than the supply, Miss Peirce states. Miss Peirce, though just starting her school, has already declined applications for teachers, as she says she can have none trained before January.

Miss Peirce expresses herself as being delighted with the first week's opening and the great interest shown by the parents of the four-year-olds. The method seems to be a leading out process, very comprehensive, simple and practical, through purposeful play. Miss Peirce has decided to have two groups of tens by special request of some parents of 12-year-old children. One group from 9 o'clock until 11, the second from 11 o'clock to 1.

Miss Ruth Lynch, who took a part of the course last summer under Mrs. Stoner, will complete the course under Miss Peirce and assist her daily with the eurythmic exercises and educational games.

NURNBERGER BUYS MARKET.

J. J. Hopkins & Company Sell Business On Market Street.

Messrs. George M. Nurnberger and George Nurnberger, who have been for several years connected with the White Market, owned by J. J. Hopkins & Company, have bought the business with its good will and a lease on the new building for a period of five years. The rental is $125 a month and the lease expires June 30th, 1920, according to the papers signed by Mr. Greene Fenley, as president, and Mr. C. S. Hopkins, as secretary of the selling company, which have been filed with the Register of Deeds for record.

The market reached its present magnitude while at the city market, but a few months ago was removed to a new brick building at Second and Market streets, where there are much better facilities for handling the business.

Messrs. Nurnberger, having been for years connected with the firm, are well prepared to keep the business up to its present high standard.

Huggins, Venerable Master of Johnson Blakely Lodge of Perfection, No. 5; Mr. Edward Osborne Penney, Wise Master of Cape Fear Chapter Rose Croix, No. 3; Mr. E. L. White, Preceptor of Liberty Council of Kadosh, No. 3; Mr. J. H. Mitchell, Master of Kadosh of Wilmington Consistory, No. 4, and Mr. C. B. Newcomb, Secretary of the Co-Ordinate bodies.

Degrees from the fourth through the 18th inclusive will be conferred on Wednesday, October 13, beginning at 11 a. m. The degrees through the 14th will be conferred by Johnson Blakely Lodge of Perfection and the degrees through the 18th by Cape Fear Chapter Rose Croix. Degrees from the 18th through the 13th will be conferred on the afternoon and evening of Thursday, October 14, by Liberty Council of Kadosh. On Friday evening, October 14, the 31st and 32nd degrees will be conferred by Wilmington Consistory.

Arrangements are being made for a large delegation of Scottish Rite Masons to attend the dedication of the New Temple of the Supreme Council of the A. & A. S. R. of Freemasonry for the Southern Jurisdiction in Washington, D. C., on October 18. "PAIR OF SIXES" RATHER LIGHT.

Weak, But Well Balanced, Company Presents Interesting Play.

"A Pair of Sixes", Edward Peple's farce comedy, which made such a hit in New York, failed to touch the right chord for the Wilmington theatre-goers and the play as presented here yesterday may be classed at about par with the poker hand from which it was named. The stage scenery was normal and tolerably well set and the plot of the play furnished ample room for an interesting performance, but the company seemed to lack just the finishing touch necessary to add feeling and interest in the situations presented.

David J. Sullivan as John, and Frederick Hagan, as Nettleton, were at their best when playing the part of the business partners, who were not getting on so well, but each lacked a bit in seriousness when disturbed in their domestic life. The women's parts, played by Misses Gertrude Fowler and Rebecca Ryeford, were good, but only spasmodically so. They at times apparently forgot they were on the stage. Coddles, the maid-of-all-work, by Miss Gertrude Clemmons, was the light humorous part and probably the best acted.

The plot of the play was well carried out. The business partners unable to go on together or dissolve satisfactorily, fall on the plan of drawing a poker hand, a pair of sixes winning and the one drawing the losing hand become the valet of the winner for a period of one year, being fined $100 for each refusal of obedience, it being a penalty of $5,000 to tell a soul of the agreement, and a forfeiture of interest in the business for either to break the agreement. The winning partner being married, invites the loser's fiancee and one of her admirers to a dinner party, as a means of humiliating the new "valet." The fiancee, being an ingenious woman, forced her way into the plot until she understood it, then persuaded her lover to make the young husband jealous, the carrying out of which caused the latter to seek a means of breaking the agreement, to get the valet away from his home.

It was a case of the man who was down becoming so well satisfied that his master grew jealous of him. It had much human nature and would make an excellent vehicle for a stronger company to split the sides of the audiences with laughter.

Y. W. C. A. GYMNASIUM NOTES.

Many Registering for Instruction in Physical Department.

The registrations for instruction in the new Y. W. C. A. gymnasium has surpassed all expectations and it has already become necessary to install a new set of lockers. While a physical examination of a general character is required, there is no charge for this service. Blanks may be secured from the office of Miss Foster, the physical director, and these may be filled out either by the family physician of the applicant or by a consulting physician of the association. In the latter case there will be no charge.

The reason for having the physical examinations is that the physical director is not willing to take anyone for instruction in the gymnasium unless recommended by a physician. The examinations are only for the purpose of finding out the condition of the lungs and heart.

One of the most popular classes is that meeting on Monday and Thursday mornings. This is intended especially for home girls.

Indoor tennis in the gymnasium is expected to prove a popular feature. This will be free for all members of the association. Those desiring to play must register at the office in order not to conflict with gymnasium classes.

CHARLOTTE IS QUEEN OF ENTERTAINERS, SAY VISITORS

Mrs. James G. Kenan, president of Cape Fear Chapter, U. D. C., Mrs. Frank Huggins and Mrs. W. L. Beery returned yesterday from Charlotte, where they attended the annual meeting of the N. C. division of the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Not only was this the largest attended meeting the State organization has ever had but Charlotte entertained her guests in a most lavish and elaborate style. Long known as the Queen City of the South, by her royal style of providing for the comfort of those attending the meeting of the State U. D. C., she established her reputation more firmly as the queen of entertainers also.

Citizens of every class and of all organizations vied with one another in making the visitors feel at home. They opened the doors of their homes to the visitors and turned out en masse to attend the public meetings. It was a beautiful mark of respect to an organization that seeks to keep alive the cherished traditions of the past in the South. Not only did the people who have always lived in the South join in providing entertainment but those from other sections, including the North, who have moved to Charlotte, did everything they could for the comfort of those attending the convention.

The annual meeting will be held next year at Gastonia, which is near Charlotte. Wilmington is represented this year on the official staff of the organization, Mrs. W. M. Creasy having been elected as recording secretary.

COURSE IN SPANISH TO BE GIVEN BY Y. W. C. A.

In addition to the other courses offered by the educational department of the Young Women's Christian Association, a course in Spanish will also be ohered for members. Mr. E. Gomez Mena, who has had extensive experience in teaching Spanish at the Y. M. C. A. in St. Louis and elsewhere has been secured as instructor. He is a native of Central America and speaks Spanish fluently and is also thoroughly acquainted with the English language. He will also give courses in Spanish at the Y. M. C. A.

The classes in Spanish will not be organized until November 1 but registrations may be made now. The course will extend over a period of six months. The charges will be moderate and within the reach of all. Those desiring only one lesson a week will be required to pay $6 while for two lessons a week, the charge will be $8.

The classes will meet on Monday and Friday nights and on Saturday afternoons.

Those in charge of the educational work of the Y. W. C. A. feel that they have been especially fortunate in securing the services of Mr. Mena and hope that there will be a large number of the members who will avail themselves of this opportunity to learn Spanish under the tutelage of a competent instructor.

In view of the opening up of the various South American countries to American trade on account of the European war, the use of the Spanish language is expected to become much more general in this country than has been the case in the past, especially in carrying on correspondence with business firms in South American countries.

DR. SPILLMAN CLOSES SERIES

Will Preach at First Baptist Church Today at 11 O'clock.

The series of lectures at the First Baptist church on Sunday school work, begun Thursday evening by Rev. Dr. B. W. Spillman, field secretary of the Sunday school board of the Southern Baptist Convention, closed last night before a large audience. These lectures were non-sectarian in nature, being meant principally for the Sunday school superintendents of any Protestant Christian church, regardless of special creed, or church discipline. There was a good attendance from many churches of the city.

Dr. Spillman is remaining in the city today and will teach the business men's Bible class at the First Baptist Sunday school this morning, and will preach at 11 o'clock to the congregation at the First Baptist church.

MAY BROTHERS' NEW STORE

Delicatessen Now Located at 24 North Front Street—An Invitation.

Messrs. May Brothers, who for some time have conducted with such success a delicatessen on Market street, and are receiving the happiest congratulations of their friends and patrons upon having fitted up here in Wilmington one of the prettiest and most up-todate stores of its kind in the entire State. Everything has been made spick and span, attractive windows have been put in and the entire place finished in pure white. Sanitation has carefully been looked after in every department of the store and the proprietors invite the ladies and general public of Wilmington to drop into the store at any time to see for themselves just what an up-to-date and pretty place they have.

RATES NOT YET EFFECTIVE

Spartanburg Will Not Get Benefit of Reduction Until January 1.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has announced that the new schedule of freight rates to Spartanburg, S. C., which were ordered to be reduced in order to place that city on an equal basis with Charlotte in competing territory, will not become effective until January. The original order was to make them effective on October 1 but as the railroads are seeking a readjustment of all freights south of the Potomac, the commission has allowed a delay.

These rates are of direct interest to Wilmington because of the fact that this port was left out of consideration in making the order, owing to the fact that there is practically no freight that comes via water to Wilmington going to Charlotte, although this is the nearest port to Charlotte, and the rates by water from New York and the same as to Charleston or Savannah, the rates to each port from New York being made on a basis of 250 miles.

OPEN NO CUSTOM HOUSE BIDS

Executive Officer of Treasury Department Says Government is Trying to Acquire More Land.

That the government is trying to secure additional land for the site of Wilmington's new custom house before awarding the contract for building the new structure, is the explanation made by Mr. Jas. A. Wetmore, executive officer, in the Supervising Architect's office of the Treasury Department for the failure yesterday to open the bids for the new building. This statement was made last night to the Washington correspondent of The Star.

Col. Walker Taylor, collector of customs for this port, has been out of the city for several days but will return this morning. Yesterday was the date set early in September for the opening of the bids for the erection of the building.

The site for the custom house was cleared of all buildings several months ago and it has been generally understood here that no more land would be bought as the present site comprises a half of the block lying between Princess and Market and Water street, and apparently is large enough for any building that the government would want to erect.

The dispatch from the Washington correspondent of The Star last night is as follows: "Jas. A. Wetmore, executive officer in the Supervising Architect's office, says bids for Wilmington custom house were not opened today. He says government is trying to acquire additional land before it is put on the market."

AGE OF MAMMOTH CAVE PRESENTS A QUESTION

Estimation Places It at Almost a Million Years.

This Great Work of Nature Came Into Provinence During War of 1812 When Government Needed Nitrate for Powder.

Doubtless everyone in this country who can read knows something of the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky. On the other hand, there may be quite a number who know very little about how this and other similar caves were formed, how old the mammoth cave probably is, what service it performed for the youthful government of the United States during the War of 1812, and various other interesting features connected with this greatest of all known caverns of the world, brought out in an article in the September number of the bulletin of the Pan-American Union, Washington, D. C.

"From time immemorial"—to quote from the bulletin's article—"caves have been objects of interest to mankind. Around them have clustered legend and superstition, in them men have found habitations for the living, refuges for the pursued, secret temples for the practice of their religious rites, and mausoleums for their dead. In ancient days there were the abodes of sybils and nymphs of Roman mythology; in Greece they became the temples for the worship of Zeus, Pan, Dionysus, and Pluto, as well as the homes of the oracles of Delphi, Corinth, and Mount Citheron; in Persia they were connected with the worship of Mithras, and in more modern times popular fancy in Europe peopled the mystery-enshrouded caves with elves, fairies, and evil spirits galore."

But after all, caves are but the results of perfectly natural forces working beneath the surface of the earth just as they do upon its face, and for the sake of convenience may be divided into three classes: (1) Those formed by the action of currents, which forces gradually hollow out caves in the weaker places, of which those found near Mar Harbor, Maine, may serve as examples; (2) those found in volcanic regions, formed by the subterranean flow of lava, or by the expansion of steam and gases, such as those in the Klamath Lake region in Oregon which are so large that they often served as effectual hiding places for the Indians in the early days of the conquest of the West; and (3) those which have been cut out of calcareous rocks by the channel action of carbonic acid in rain water, combined with the mechanical friction of the sand and stones set in forcible motion by the streams of water which have flowed through them for ages. These last are the most numerous and most important in size, and it is to this class that the Mammoth Cave belongs.

As most people know, the cave is in Edmonson county, Kentucky, about 85 miles southwest of Louisville, and not far from Green River, into which the cave's subterranean waters empty. This section of Kentucky, where may be found limestone beds frequently reaching a thickness of 500 feet, is noted for its rocky grottoes, sink holes, and caverns. The rocks in the vicinity of Mammoth Cave give evidence of but little disturbance by the dynamic forces of past ages. It is such areas of limestone deposits, with comparatively level strata and located somewhat above a drainage level, with small crevices or joints, that furnish the conditions for the formation of underground passageways and chambers by the chemical and mechanical agency of underground waters.

From a geological viewpoint Mammoth Cave is of comparatively recent origin, its formation having begun something less than 1,000,000 years ago, in the Pliocene age. The cave action began after Green river had cut its channel down into the limestone stratum which underlies this section. The rain water, with its carbonic acid content, seeped through the overlying earth and passing into and through the crevices and joints of the stone, at that time above the level of the river, began the work of solution and erosion. These underground waters gathered along the planes of least resistance, and as the crevices grew in size more and more of the surface water was drained into them, and as Green river cut its bed deeper into the limestone underlay the cave waters kept pace with the process until what had once been more subterranean rills grew into that remarkable underground stream known as Echo river. During the ages it has been at work dissolving the stone and cutting its way along where resistance was least, ever seeking lower levels, it has left behind it the twisted, tortuous passageways and large galleries and chambers which form this mightiest of all known caverns. According to geologists, it took Green river nearly 1,000,000 years to cut away its present bed, so the cave is estimated to be almost as old. It first came into prominence during the War of 1812, when the United States government needed nitrate to make powder. Some of the large entrance chambers of the cave had formed the winter habitations for myriads of bats for many ages, and as a result the cave became a nitrate mine whence much of the powder supply for the young nation was obtained.

WHITE MAN SHOT BY NEGRO

Irving Shaw, of Newbern, in Hospital But Will Recover.

(Epecial Star Correspondence.)

Newbern, N. C., Oct. 8.—Efforts have been made to learn the whereabouts of the negro brakeman, who yesterday morning shot and thrice wounded Irving Shaw, of this city, a flagman on a Norfolk Southern freight train, but these have proved of no avail and it is believed that the negro, whose name could not be learned, has left this section.

The assault was a most murderous one and it was fortunate for Mr. Shaw that the negro did not aim at some vital part of his body. The affair grew out of a rebuke which the white man had given the black and the former had no idea that there was any trouble brewing.

Report from the hospital today was to the effect that Mr. Shaw was resting easily and would without doubt recover.

WEATHER WILL HINDER THE TURKISH DEFENSE

Winter at the Dardanelles is Likely to be Severe.

Turkish Troops, Coming From Warm Climes and With Lack of Food Stamina, Will Suffer More Than Allies, Says Scientist.

(Correspondence of Associated Press.)

London, Sept. 10.—The hope that the forcing of the Dardanelles might be accomplished by the middle of October, when the weather and the tides are likely to become more formidable, has been often discussed wherever British officers meet. Not that there will be any diminution of effort after that time, but there is a full realization that conditions will then become far less favorable. An observer who has been in the Marmora vicinity for 30 years, making close meteorological records, while admitting that the winter is not so agreeable for military achievements, describes what sort of weather may be expected and gives these general observations, in the Westminster Gazette:

"To those who have relatives or friends at the Dardanelles, let them send good strong warm stockings for the men besides the usual waistcoats and mufflers; and as for creature comforts, sweets, chocolate, and tobacco especially cigarettes. It is the Turks who will suffer from the cold; they cannot stand it long, and being fed generally mainly on bread, they have no stamina to meet cold weather. Most of their troops come from warm climes."

November, according to this scientist, has a cold snap or two generally in the last week, but many people call it the most glorious month of the year. The battle of Lule Bourgas was fought three years ago on the fifth, sixth and seventh of that month, in a storm of raging rain and sleet, succeeded by several nights of hard frost, which caused the death of many a wounded and neglected soldier. Another year there was a heavy snowstorm on November 16-17; yet after such setbacks the weather usually recovers and grows warmer.

No real winter need be looked for, he says, till the middle of January when there are heavy snows which have been known to lie six weeks, and with them come the gales which may make the supply from the sea a difficult task. He points out that of late years no great cold has visited the Marmoro, though in 1893 the Golden Horn from the inner bridge of Constantinople was frozen so people walked about on the ice, and floes were about for several weeks, this being an exceptional season. Winter is said to have finished by the middle of April.

That this naturalist has confined his observations to land and not to sea conditions may make him more optimistic about the climate which the British seem to regard as likely to increase their difficulties materially. One writer with the expedition has commented on the general expectation that there will be very arduous work for the destroyers, trawlers and picket boats, as well as for the larger ships when the gales begin to come up out of the southwest, and that undoubtedly is perfectly understood by all in charge of the operations.

On the other hand, the defenders of the Straits are making the most of the weather probabilities to encourage their supporters. For example, the Berlin Lokal Anzeiger reports that the Turks are expecting another furious attack "before the equinoxial storms arrive to prevent absolutely the continuance of the campaign till spring." The same paper says the equinoxial storms in this region, particularly in the Saros Bay, are very severe, adding "the Allies appreciate that even one south storm which is inevitable, will be sufficient to prevent the landing of supplies and ammunition, the transfer of wounded to the ships and the carrying of water to the troops, for only the most powerful ships by the use of their power can withstand such a storm as every winter brings in Saros bay, while the use of lighters and small boats is out of the question for days or weeks at a time."

MUCH LARGER NAVY IS QUERY FOR HIGH SCHOOL DEBATES.

Every Secondary and High School in State Invited to Participate.

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 7.—The query which will be discussed this year by the schools having membership in the High School Debating Union of North Carolina is: "Resolved, That the United States should adopt the policy of greatly enlarging the Navy." A bulletin of 60 or 70 pages containing outlines and arguments on both sides of this query and references to sources from which further material can be secured will be sent free of charge to all schools which are members of the Union. This bulletin will reach the schools not later than November 15th.

Every secondary and high school in the State is invited to become a member of the Union and participate in the contest of 1916. Every school that enters will, as in the past, be grouped with two others for a triangular debate, each school putting out two teams, one on the affirmative and the other on the negative. The schools winning both debates will be entitled to send their teams to the University to compete for the State championship and the Aycock Memorial Cup. The triangular debates will be held throughout the State the latter part of March and the final contest at the University early in April. The exact dates for these contests will be decided upon later.

Since its inauguration three years ago by the literary societies and the bureau of extension of the University, the High School Debating Union has met with splendid success. Three comprehensive State-wide debates have been held and schools and communities alike have been benefitted by them. Last spring the State-wide contest was participated in by 250 schools and 1,000 student debaters, and it is a safe estimate that fully 50,000 people from first to last heard the discussions over the State on the question of subsidies for the merchant marine. The committee hopes that this year every school of secondary nature in the State will enroll in the Union for the discussion of the enlargement of the United States Navy. E. R. Rankin, secretary of the Union at Chapel Hill, will be glad to hear from you as to your school and the debates.

DR. PRATT'S "REGULATIONS" RECEIVE HIGH ENDORSEMENT

Rules for Sanitary Management of Convict Camps Praised.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 7.—Dr. Joseph Hyde Pratt, State geologist of North Carolina, has issued a bulletin of rules and regulations for the sanitary management of convict camps which the national committee on prisons and prison labor feels of importance to all state and county authorities in charge of convict road work.

The bulletin contains suggestions for the construction of buildings, how to secure air and ventilation, and to regulate the water supply and equipment.

Under the heading "Food and Nutrition," Dr. Pratt asserts that every convict should be weighed monthly and his weight compared with that of normal men the same height. In this way a pretty good check can be kept as to whether the health of the convict is well looked-after.

Recommendation is made as to proper clothing for the men, for beds and bedding, bathing facilities, the disposal of sewerage and how to contend with vermin, malaria and other diseases resulting from flies and similar insects; also for the control of tuberculosis ,typhoid and infectious diseases generally.

The prison life, according to Dr. Pratt, should be so regulated that the prisoner will have ten to eleven hours sleep and one to one and a half hours' recreation, exclusive of the time taken to get ready for meals and at the meals.

The recreation of the prisoners is an important matter to the camp superintendent who should be able to secure such games as checkers or chess, also magazines and newspapers. The superintendent should also be responsible for preventing exhaustion, heat strokes and sun strokes, for such accidents are not necessary in a well-managed camp.

These various factors are discussed in detail and a chart attached to the bulletin on which to report the conditions of individual convicts. The national committee on prisons and prison labor has checked Dr. Pratt's bulletin with the results of its own scientific investigations and recommends the bulletin as containing a practical outline for the regulation of convict camps. The adoption of the scheme will tend towards the successful development of road work in North Carolina and other states which employ similar methods.

HORNED RABBITS IN TEXAS

At Least That's the Testimony of Those Who Saw Ater's Game Bag.

A. Ater, of Roscoe, Texas, has found something new under the sun. West Texas is noted for growing horns and thorns. Nearly everything that grows there has a horn, a thorn or a singer. But never until now did any one ever hear of a timid, modest little molly cottontail with horns. Mr. Ater killed one of these little animals a few days ago, and to his amazement found a nice pair of horns about two inches protruding from the head just above and back of the ears, where all well-regulated horns ought to grow.

In order to satisfy those who questioned it, he removed the scalp of the robbit and took it to Roscoe, leaving it at the Roscoe Times office. After close scrutiny it was concluded that these horns were not very formidable weapons either for offense or defense, but if the rabbit didn't use them for either of these purposes those who examined the scalp were unable to figure out what use they could have been to her. At any rate, they warned all rabbit twisters that hereafter they must be careful lest one desperate cottontail should some time turn upon them with her horns and rend them.

BE A LEADER! BE A FOLLOWER!
1 Sam. 14:1-16; 18:1-4.

God often thrusts leadership upon those who shrink from it. Recall how many of the Old Testament heroes and prophets were men who even besought God not to lay public duty on them. Recall also how many of those who sought authority and control either never won it or won it only to show their incapacity. It came to be a wise counsel of the ancient days, "Seekest thou great things for thyself? Seek them not."

And even when men have been ambitious for high place and have won it and have not broken down in it but have carried out their plans, how sure can we be that it would not have been far better for the world if they had not thrust themselves in? Again and again the world has set itself patiently to work out from the effects of the scheme and activities of men who have set themselves to lead their fellows.

We make a great deal more of ourselves and a great deal less of God than we would if we knew him and ourselves and history better. God's great plan is wiser than any plan of ours and it needs humble discernment and obedience on our part rather than presumptious meddling and the mushroom scheming which we are so prone to call "statesmanship" and "strategy". God has a mighty will in history which embraces every human life and we need to find that will and hide in it rather than to cross it with our little projects.

The world needs leaders, leaders who know how to lead and are willing to go to the front. If leaders have power and possession, they should give themselves and their substance to this calling. Someone has said, "There are twenty who lead to one who lifts." A lifter is a leader. Leaders must be good thinkers with courage and conviction. They must know how to control followers, and thus use them to the best advantage. A magnetic leader can secure almost any reasonable results through his followers. A right kind of leader is going in the right direction, and has a right and noble purpose to accomplish. Each one should make an invoice of his powers and purposes, and if there is evidence that training would develop leadership, he should turn and study to become a leader.

The world also needs followers, followers who can recognize a leader and then sustain and support him. Leaders could not do much without followers. Soldiers contribute more to victory than officers. The stokers are as valuable to the running of the ship as is the captain on deck. Men praise good leaders, and God appreciates the service of the faithful followers. The officers of the society should be leaders. Every member should try to be a faithful follower. The pastor and officers of the church ought to be leaders, and every member of the church should seek to be a faithful follower.

Stop, young friend, your mad rush after sensual pleasure; 'sit apart and dream and think and plan; then arouse yourself from your slumbers, enter the field of combat, and fight till victory perches upon your banner. If thou art seeking for a kingdom to rule in, that kingdom is in you. You are that kingdom. Follow thou faithfully until thou develop leadership and then lead on to eternal victory.

The Encouragers.

What a list of Bible people there are who have a right to be placed under this head.

Caleb and Joshua, (Numbers 14:1-10) what a comfort they must have been to Moses and Aaron when the whole congregation murmured against them!

Elisha, the man who brought to lonely Elijah the joy of the human touch.

Miriam, with her songs of cheer in the lonely years of Israel's waiting in the wilderness.

Mary and Martha with the home making qualities, which gave refreshment to the Master.

Ruth, with the loving allegiance of her "Wherever thou goest I will go."

Samuel, the boy who served with gladness the whims of an old, broken man, and so "ministered unto the Lord before Eli."

John, the disciple whom Jesus loved —what must he have meant to the Master.

The list of these Encouragers might be multiplied indefinitely. That quality of a good follower has never been sufficiently emphasized, and yet it is a quality every one of us can so easily cultivate.

If "Rooters" are essential to baseball success—and we know they are—why not in the game of life? Are you a rooter? If not, get busy and see how the players and the leaders will respond.

The Follower.

I looked where I heard them laughing—the wee ones at play;
But I said, "I serve the great Lord Christ, and I may not pause nor stay."
I looked where I heard them weeping —the weary of woe and sin;
But I said, "I go for the great Lord Christ on his errands the world to win."
I looked when I heard singing—the bride at her festival;
But I said, "Who follows the great Lord Christ is deaf to a lower call."
But lo, in the Book at nightfall in the mirror I seem to see
(Or a vision sweet) the Lord of the work, as of old in Galilee.
And he had a smile for the children, and leisure to watch their play;
And they climbed on his knee and into his lap, and He would not send them away;
And in and out of the houses, wherever men worked or wailed,
I could see Him pass with His healing touch and His love that never failed.
And up and down on the highways, and where the common people go,
With a light in His face and help in His hands He was traveling to and fro.
The cripple that cried in His pathway —I saw him stand straight and tall!
And the beggared and blind crept close to His feet, and He had alms for all.
His face flashed heavenly pity that healed every human ill;
But I said, "Can this be the work of the Christ?"—and I thought of Calvary's hill.
Then light from the Word brake forth anew, and a low voice spake to me:
"Who would bear the cross of the great Lord Christ must mark where His footprints be."

WITH THE CLUB WOMEN

Federation News of North Carolina.

By Miss Mary Moses.

Adult illiteracy in North Carolina is doomed. This is a bold statement, since we know that the census of 1910 shows only two states—Louisiana and New Mexico—having a larger percentage of native-born white illiterates, and in the number of illiterates of the native-born white male population 21 years of age and over, North Carolina stands last. The question then might well be asked "What foundation has North Carolina for such an assertion?" The answer is "the Establishment of Moonlight Schools in every Nook and Corner of the State."

Moonlight Schools.

Moonlight schools are schools conducted in public school buildings on moonlight nights for the purpose of teaching adults of any age to read and write. The important thing to be noticed is that every man and woman is invited and urged to attend these schools, so that he or she may be redeemed from illiteracy, and become a useful factor in society. The studies pursued in these schools are reading, writing, arithmetic, and spelling. The books will be provided by the county superintendent, and will be necessarily made up simply, so as to assist the pupil to read and write easily.

Teachers Volunteer.

Pledge cards for volunteer teachers were distributed at the teachers' institutes during the summer, and over seven thousand teachers have offered their services throughout the State. Too much commendation cannot be given to the patriotic teachers who have volunteered their services for, this work free, and who will receive no compensation at all. North Carolina will forever be under great obligations to her teachers, who are the ones to make the most secrifice and shoulder most of the work during this campaign.

November—"Moonlight School Month."

November is the month to be set apart in North Carolina as the "Moonlight School Month." The general plan for this month is for the schools to be conducted for three nights each week in every community where such work is needed. There will be county committees, consisting of the county superintendent of schools, farm demonstration agent, representative of the junior order, the Women's Clubs, and others. These, with a local committee, will assist in each district in helping make a success of the moonlight schools. Already many moonlight schools are being conducted in many counties of the State. We hope that the campaign to be waged in November will see the schools flourishing in every county, and that North Carolina will take her place in the front rank in the cause of education and progress.

Home Instruction.

In some instances it will be found of advantage to establish a home department of the moonlight schools in which the timid and indifferent may be taught at home. Sometimes there may be difficulty in obtaining a foothold. In these cases the lessons may be introduced in a social gathering brought together mainly for some other purpose. It should be borne in mind that:

"Men must be taught as if you taught them not,
And things unknown, proposed as things forgot."

It has been found that after they learn to read and write a little, they will then be anxious to enroll in the night schools.

All Organizations Urged to Co-operate.

The education department of the State, with Dr. J. Y. Joyner at its head, has secured the endorsement of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, the North Carolina Press Association, the Farmers' Union, and others. It asks for the hearty co-operation of the schools, churches, all philanthropic societies ,and every man, woman and child in North Carolina. All forces are urged to rally to the support of the State in this educational movement.

Pledge of Federation of Women's Clubs

The North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs, at its annual meeting in May, 1915, pledged its active support in the efforts that would be made in the State to eliminate illiteracy. At the head of the work for the federation is the president, Mrs. T. W. Lingle ,of Davidson, North Carolina, who is also chairman of the one hundred representative women of North Carolina, who will assist her in this campaign.

Volunteer Helpers Enlistment Card.

In order to do the work more effectively, money will be necessary for various purposes during the campaign. This part of the work has been inaugurated by Mrs. T. W. Lingle, who will be ably assisted by one hundred North Carolina women. Cards are now being distributed by them for the purpose of allowing everyone to volunteer their services, and to contribute ten cents or more toward the expenses. Anyone who wishes to contribute, or to volunteer their services in any respect, will please write Mrs. T. W. Lingle, Davidson, N. C., if no cards are available.

Is It Worth While?

To those who think the movement is one merely of sentiment, and not worth while we will give the reply of an old woman of seventy-two benefits of these schools. She said, "Oh, to be able to read my Bible, and to write to my children and grandchildren—I would not take anything for the privilege!"

The education committee of the North Carolina Federation of Women's Clubs urges each club woman in North Carolina to take active part in this movement. I have already found that the condition is not what I feared it would be—that there are so many problems in this work and so few to meet them—but the reverse; that there are so many fine, bright people eager to solve and help. The committee will be glad to be called upon, and to render every assistance possible.

MRS. M. J. DAUER,
Vice Chairman of Education Department.

Special Meeting on Illiteracy.

At Mrs. Lingle's request, the Education Department of the North Carolina Federation has made out a programme to be used at some meeting during the year by each club in the State. In this way the members will be informed as to the nature and progress of the most important work for the coming year—the living question for North Carolina—the subject of Adult Illiteracy. It is sincerely hoped that the following programme will be fully carried out.

Programme.

Each club should adopt the slogan: "Every man, woman and child in North Carolina can read and write by 1920."

1. Brief papers on "Adult Illiteracy in North Carolina." (See "Adult Illiteracy in North Carolina and Plans for Its Elimination", issued from the office of State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Raleigh, N. C.)

2. Brief sketch on "Kentucky's Campaign Against Illiteracy." (Bulletin No. 20, 1913, "Illiteracy in United States." Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C.)

3. A special paper on "Illiteracy in One's Own Community." (Find out actual conditions as they exist in your town. What is the number, and where are the illiterates?)

4. Solution of the problem—"A Chance for Everybody in 1915." "Moonlight Schools." (Bulletin No. 20, 1913. "Illiteracy in United States," Supt. of Documents, Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. Price 10 cents. "Are the Moonlight Schools in Your County Already Opened, or Ready to be Opened?")

5. Discussion—"What our club will do to support the work undertaken by the Federation."

Suggested Activities.

1. Organize Committees.
(a)—To report activities in reducing illiteracy in city, town and county.
(b)—To report illiterates to school authorities and to co-operate with school officials in every way.
(c)—Keep your club well informed in regard to conditions and results.
(d)—Find out if the members of your club are inclined favorably toward this movement. If not, try to interest them.
(e)—Confer a favor on the Education Department by sending reports of the work either to Mrs. Thomas W. Lingle president of the Federation, Davidson, N. C., or to Mrs. M. J. Dauer, chairman of the Illiteracy Committee, Wilmington, N. C.

Appeal of the Education Department.

The Education Committee earnestly desires that the Education Department of each club study and give some time during the year to this subject, in addition to the special meeting urged above. Realizing that a Woman's club is a social center from which this work may grow, we are anxious for each club to spend as much time and thought as possible on it. We will be glad to render any assistance during the campaign, and feel the greatest interest in everything that is being done.

CIRCUS OWNERS INTERESTING MEN

By Floyd King.

Circus Day, to the men who have hundreds of thousands of dollars invested, means the culmination of long and careful and systematic preparation. To get ready for the day has been the work of many months, and has employed the attention and talents of men wonderfully expert in their particular fields. Ninety-seven per cent of the men engaged in the circus calling are descendants of those who have followed the calling in other years. Few who enter the circus fields are ever able to successfully shake off the desire to follow the "white tops."

Adam Forepaugh, a former Philadelphia butcher, who died several years ago, was the most remarkable circus man of his day. There have been others who have enjoyed more publicity, but as to the ability of creating and organizing and the power of handling men, Mr. Forepaugh was without an equal, it is said.

He was as rugged and uncouth as a Minnesota wood chopper. He talked and acted like a bowery tough. But he had a heart as true as steel and was as kind and resentless as it is possible for a circus man to be. Often at night I have seen him emerge from the "big top" after the menagerie had been torn down and round up the crowd of urchins and others who hang about the show hoping in some way to gain admittance. "Get in dere," he would say, or I'll tan your hides." It is needless to say that these small boys never waited to have their hides tanned. Then the showman would sit down in his arm chair, rest his hands upon his cane, and chuckle good naturedly. When Mr. Forepaugh died several years ago he was worth more than $4,000,000.

Near Columbus, O., two or three generations ago, there lived a poor Methodist preacher who rode a big circuit, which necessitated him preaching four or five times every Sunday. The Rev. Dr. Sells had four boys: Adam, Lew, Peter and Ephraim. The neighbors said that the boys were the worst for miles around. Like most other boys, sons of ministers, they were pulled from post to pillar, and they grew up as best they could. The boys finally left home and began to peddle Bibles. This proved rather slow, and they began to sell electric belts, which they passed out like wild fire. The ability of the wizard-like Edison was just beginning to dawn, and they proved profitable days to the venders of electric belts. The boys saved their money, and one day they had a chance to buy a small wagon show that had stranded. They did all sorts of things to save salaries, even to the raising of the tent in which the performance was given. The show grew and prospered. When the last of the brothers died in Columbus, six years ago, he left an estate of many million dollars. The careful training the boys received in a Christian home was never afterward eradicated in spite of their calling or business principles.

A showman who is known by all circus men, and of whom the layman knows but little, is "Popcorn" George Hall, living at Delevan Lake, Wis., hale and hearty at the age of 82. Circus men of other days all had one great failing, they loved to be called "colonel," and, as soon as one came into possession of a circus, the title automatically fell to him. Now, Mr. Hall had been known for a quarter of a century as "Popcorn George," for it was he who invented the candy form of delicacy made from popcorn. And so, when Mr. Hall came into possession of his first circus, he had calling cards printed reading: "Col. George W. Hall," and likewise on all his passes he had a similar "handle." But the old circus followers couldn't see the "colonel," and much to Mr. Hall's chagrin, he was ever known as "Popcorn George."

The richest individual showman in the world today lives not a great ways from Indianapolis, in the little city of Peru, Ind. He is "Uncle Ben" Wallace, and the name has been lisped upon the tongues of millions of little tots in the United States, Canada and Mexico.

Thirty years ago Mr. Wallace was running a livery stable in Peru. One day a small wagon show passed through town and bought several horses. A mortgage was taken on the circus paraphernalia. The showmen were never able to lift the mortgage, and it fell into Mr. Wallace's hands. He tried in vain to dispose of the property, and so the next spring he took it out, calling the little aggregation "The Great Wallace Show." The young Hoosier showman applied to his circus the same careful attention that he had given his livery stable. He was one of the first men to run a show upon business-like principles, and to do away with the gypsylike methods which had long predominated circus life. Dishonesty and graft were not allowed in any form.

It is no wonder that the show began to grow and to continue to do so until it reached the zenith of circusdom. The running of a circus is a stupendous proposition. Generally, there are many men interested, and each has one particular line of work to follow. Not so with Mr. Wallace—he has never had a partner. His success has been due to the fact that he knows how to handle men.

There is nothing about his great organization with which he is not familiar. He knows every one of the 1,025 employees, most of them by their first name. On a rainy, bad night, when difficulty is found in loading the train, it is not an uncommon sight to see him down at the "runs" in mud up to his knees, wrestling and working side by site with the circus "razorbacks," whose pay is less than $1 per day. Mr. Wallace purchased the great Carl Hagenbeck wild animal show six years ago, and combined it with his circus. He travels with the show at all times, and he personally selects the 400 performers and the hundreds of other attaches.

AMERICAN FACTORIES GRAB BRITISH FIELD

Only Touring Cars Sold in England Made in U. S. A.

Now Only a Question of Ships—If Enough Vessels Can be Secured to Carry Cars, Dealers Will Cash In on Them.

Detroit, Oct. 9.—That America will soon own bodily the entire automobile trade of Great Britain and such parts of continental Europe as are open to commerce, is the confident declaration of Ernest A. De Lorenzi, of the Maxwell Motor Co., of London, England, who has been for several days in conference with American officials of the parent company.

Mr. De Lorenzi believes that the Maxwell company should expand the scope of its export campaign, even to a greater extent than the normal rate of increase provided for in the allotment of cars in the season's schedule.

"European factories are producing virtually no passenger carrying cars at all for private consumption," says Mr. De Lorenzi. "Most of them are working solely on government contracts, building cars adapted for war purposes with various types of body. Some of them are changing their entire plants over to the production of aeroplanes. Touring cars of British make are produced only in such a limited way as to create no impression whatever on the market.

"British makers are still further handicapped by the fact that, unless they are working on government contracts they have only the lame, the halt and the blind among the nation's workmen. The pick of the British mechanics are all either at the front or at work on government enterprises.

"To still further increase the handicaps of the British makers, the price of skilled labor has increased nearly 100 per cent—a condition which bars the door to the production of any car at a profit."

Mr. De Lorenzi says that, aside from the smallness of his allotment of cars, the feature which worries him most is the difficulty of getting cars across the Atlantic. Virtually all the available vessels are chartered for war munitions and his firm has now in New York a considerable shipment of Maxwell cars which have been awaiting transit for two weeks.

Mr. De Lorenzi makes light of the submarine menace. He says that, since the war began, no automobile carrying vessel has been lost or torpedoed. He admits, however, that his firm has established a warehouse at Liverpool and and is shipping to that port rather than London, the former port of destination. He also confesses to havin paid a $50 premium on life and property insurance for himself and Mrs. De Lorenzi, prior to their departure for America on the Arduna.

"We are clearing the ocean of the U-boats by various means, declares Mr. De Lorenzi, "We met a bunch of them, but our most effective method has been to disguise patrol boats as trawlers and to send them out as part of the trawler fleet. The submarines usually come to the top and attack the trawler fleet with shell fire. All of a sudden a four-inch gun answers them and the submarine is through as a commerce pest."

AN "IF" FOR GIRLS.

(With Apologies to Mr. Rudyard Kipling.)

If you can dress to make yourself attractive,
Yet not make puffs and curls your chief delight
If you can swim and row, be strong and active,
But of the gentler graces not lose sight;
If you can dance without a craze for dancing,
Play without giving play too strong a hold,
Enjoy the love of friends without romancing,
Care for the weak, the friendless and the old;
If you can master French and Greek and Latin,
And not acquire, as well, a priggish mien;
If you can feel the touch of silk and satin
Without despising calico and jean;
If you can ply a saw and use a hammer,
Can do a man's work when the need occurs,
Can sing, when asked, without excuse or stammer,
Can rise above unfriendly snubs and slurs;
If you can make good bread as well as fudges,
Can sew with skill, and have an eye for dust;
If you can be a friend and hold no grudges,
A girl whom all will love because they must;
If sometime you should meet and love another,
And make a home with faith and peace enshrined,
And you its soul—a loyal wife and mother—
You'll work out pretty nearly to my mind
The plan that's been developed through the ages,
And win the best that life can have in store:
You'll be, my girl, a model for the sages—
A woman whom the world will bow before.

THE PRESIDENT'S FIANCEE, MRS. NORMAN GALT.

THE MIRACLE OF POLITE PERSISTENCY

By Orison Swett Marden

Polite persistency plays a large part in the success of many business men. When genius has failed in what is attempted, and talent says impossible; when every other faculty gives up; when tact retires and diplomacy has fled; when logic and argument and influence and "pulls" have all done their best and retired from the field, gritty persistency, bulldog tenacity, steps in and by sheer force of holting on wins, y sheer force of holding on wins,et, does the impossible.

It takes grit to persist when everybody else would stop; to keep on pleading your case when others would give up in despair. But it is just this ability to stick and hang, and yet not lose your temper or suffer your good sense or good judgment to fail you, that enables you to get a big salary where others get a small one; that gives you a reputation for being a king in your line while others are content to plod along in mediocrity.

It is the man who will not be turned down, no matter how gruff or impolite or insulting the would-be customer may be, who succeeds. He tries a second or third or fourth time, and often gains not only the customer's admiration for his pluck and determination, but also gets the order or closes the contract because of his persistency and genial manners. It is characteristic of human nature to be prejudiced against all solicitors and agents—people who are trying to get an order or a subscription—and when a man finds that it is easy to turn one down, to get rid of him, he will do so. But when he finds someone who will not be turned down and yet will not offend him, it is not so easy to get rid of him. He knows that when polite, dogged persistency confronts him he has a difficult task ahead of him, and he often succumbs out of sheer admiration of the solicitor's or salesman's persistency, especially if the man has an interesting personality and charm of manner.

It is the man in the business world who will not surrender, who will not take no for an answer, and who stands his ground with such suavity of manner, such politeness, that you cannot take offense, cannot turn him down; that gets the order; that closes the contract; that gets the subscription; that gets the credit or loan.

Ah, what miracles tenacity of purpose has performed! The last to leave the field, the last to turn back, it persists when all other forces have surrendered and fled. It has won many a battle even after hope has left the field.

FOR YOUNG MEDICAL MEN

Government Filling Vacancies in Public Health Service.

Young medical men between the ages of 23 and 32 will be given an opportunity on November 1, 1915, according to a circular just issued by Surgeon General Rupert Blue, to demonstrate their fitness for admission to the grade of assistant surgeon in the United States Public Health Service. There are several vacancies in the government's mobile sanitary corps, which is now in the 118th year of its existence, but in order to be recommended to the President for a commission, a physical and professional examination must first be passed. As the tenure of office is permanent and the public health officers are liable to duty in all parts of the world, they are required to certify that they believe themselves free from any ailment which would disqualify them for service in any climate. Boards will be convened at Washington, Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville, New Orleans and San Francisco, but permission to take the examination must first be obtained from the surgeon general. The examination is searching and includes, in addition to the various branches of medicine, surgery and hygiene, the subjects of the preliminary education, history, literature and the natural sciences. Commissions will be issued as assistant surgeon and, after four years of service, the young officers are entitled to examination for promotion to the grade of passed assistant surgeon, and after twelve years of service to another examination for promotion to the grade of surgeon. The annual salaries are: Assistant surgeon, $2,000; passed assistant surgeons, $2,400; surgeon, $3,000; senior surgeon, $3,500; assistant surgeon general, $4,000. When the government does not provide quarters, commutation at the rate of $30, $40 and $50 a month according to grade is allowed. All grades receive longevity pay, that is 10 per cent. in addition to the regular salary for every five years until the maximum of 40 per cent. is reached. When officers travel on official duties they are reimbursed their actual traveling expenses.

MOST CONSISTENT EXPONENT OF DRAGGED ROAD IS WEST.

Great Improvement in Roads System Brought About by Drag.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9.—The great Central West has been the most consistent exponent of the dragged road and in no section or like area are there so many miles of this type. More than this, and of really large importance, in the scheme of road dragging there has been carried out the major principle of through highways that not merely serve locally but have definite connections with main traveled and through routes entirely across adjoining states.

The excellence of these dragged highways and feeder roads has so improved previous conditions that they seemed to serve all needs and purposes. While admitting their real value the hard surfaced exponents have pointed out that after all, road dragging was but an intermediate condition that must give away to construction that would be permanent, a view point that was not readily accepted in the sections where road dragging had been reduced to an art.

There has been, of late, a noticeable agreement with this viewpoint due mostly to the large volume of touring that has been done in the East this season, by automobilists from west of the Mississippi river.

These tourists in their calls at both the Washington and the New York Touring Bureaus of the American Automobile Association, have without exception stated their conversion to the hard surfaced road. These tourists generally lived in sections where the dragged road was both prominent and excellent, but were impressed with the one big difference—the effect of rain.

They told of many instances of home trips, that had been planned, that ordinarily could have been made at good speed and with comfort, in dry weather, that had to be abandoned because of an hour's rain. In their trips through the East, over the hard-surfaced roads, they found that rain did not interfere with their plans and that the roads were travelable no matter whether it rained an hour or a day. This was so unusual an experience that each of them has gone back home a thorough convert who will work with enthusiasm to spread the propaganda, already started in some sections, of hard surfaced roads.

EVENTS OF A WEEK IN AND ABOUT LUMBERTON

Not a Case of Typhoid or Malaria in Town in September.

Court Convenes Again Tuesday—North Lumberton to be Improved—Seaboard Increasing Track Force—Protection For Trees.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Lumberton, N. C., 9.—Near Fairmont, 11 miles south of here, last night about 8 o'clock, John Prevatt, a white man about 30 years old, was shot, death resulting in 30 minutes. Prevatt is said to have gone home drunk, had a row with his wife and in some way received the contents of a shot gun in his right breast. His wife claims that he shot himself. The verdict of the coroner's jury was that he came to his death at the hands of parties to them unknown.

Court which convened Monday for a two weeks term adjourned yesterday at noon until Tuesday morning. The Carlyle will case which was the first called Monday morning was continued until the December term. The Prevatt case against Lumberton was tried and the plaintiff awarded $50. This was a case in which suit was brought for personal injuries by stepping or falling off the end of a little bridge. The town was sued for $1,000 damage.

A Western Union inspector was here one day this week. As many people see it, the time has come when Lumberton needs better telegraph service. The service being given is as good as could be asked for so far as it goes, but one man is expected to do much, working from 8 A. M. until 8 P. M., with one hour off for dinner. The present manager is not given an assistant, and it makes no difference how important the case, if a message is sent from or received here after 8 p. m., the thanks are due the manager and not the company. The Lumberton office should be kept open at least until 10 o'clock.

Mr. F. F. Wetmore, civil engineer, tells of a tract of land near Pembroke, 12 miles west of here on the Seaboard, which was taken up by Charles Oxendien on April 19, 1768. This land has descended from one generation to another up to the present time without ever being out of the family. Oxendine was a Croatan, or Cherokee, as that race of people is now called. Mr. Wetmore says that at that time there was not a negro in the county.

Decidedly the best show of its kind ever seen in Lumberton was "A Pair of Sixes," which filled an engagement at the Opera house Wednesday night. Last night "The Tar Heel Minstrels," a local talent organization, played to a packed house, giving, it is said, a splendid performance. The next attraction booked is that old play, "Human Hearts," a play which is always good to look upon. Shows are few and far between this season coming this way.

Not a Case of Typhoid.

It is said that during the month of September there was not in the corporate limits of Lumberton a case of typhoid or malarial fever, nor a case of chills and fever. It is doubtful if such a thing ever occurred here before. This condition has been brought about by hearty co-operation of the citizens with the town officials. It is a record of which every one should feel proud.

Great improvement is soon to be made in North Lumberton by opening up more streets and widening some already in use. The thanks of all that section are certainly due Mr. C. M. Barker for his untiring efforts to do the work that is about to be accomplished. Watch North Lumberton grow!

There is no longer any trouble about railroad connections for people here who desire to visit Charleston, S. C. Passengers can leave here at 10:20 A. M. over the R. & C., change cars at Smithboro and arrive in Charleston at 5:40 P. M. Passengers coming from Charleston can leave there at 10 A. M. and arrive in Lumberton at 6:15 P. M. The fare from here to Charleston is $4.25.

Mr. James D. Proctor left this morning for Graham to spend Sunday with his family, which is spending some time with relatives in that town.

Wingate Lawson, a white man 65 years old, who had been evading the officers for some time, was arrested by Sheriff Lewis and deputies last night near the South Carolina line in the southern part of the county. Lawson is charged with shooting a man some time ago, contempt of court, giving a mortgage on land which he did not own as bond for his appearance. He is now in jail.

Adding Railroad Track Force.

The writer saw a railroad section foreman one day this week hunting two men to work on his section. He said he had been allowed two additional men on his force but could find no one who wanted a job. That sounds good from one viewpoint, but bad from another. There is no doubt that there are several in this community who need jobs but run from such a thing.

It is understood that in a few days another beef shop is to be opened in the little tin house, corner Fifth and Elm streets. It is said Charlie West will be manager.

Things broke out in a new place last Saturday afternoon and night and there were more signs of liquor than had been seen here in a long time. Only one or two had enough to make them act ugly, but the air was well loaded with the scent of whiskey in all directions.

Over half a hundred quarts came in this morning. It came with the cool wave.

Plans are being made for a trip to Wrightsville in the near future by a number of gentlemen who always welcome the oyster season.

At 10:30 last night a cold wave struck this section, the mercury dropping 30 degrees. It was almost cloudy when the wind began to blow, but soon cleared off. This morning was clear and beautiful, with fires and overcoats in demand.

To Protect the Trees.

At the regular meeting of the mayor and town commissioners Tuesday night, a rigid ordinance was passed which is intended to protect trees on the streets, and especially in the vicinity of the graded school. Trouble is waiting for the boys who persist in defacing trees by cutting their initials and otherwise defacing shade, fruit and nut trees.

There is soon to be a movement started by some of the citizens residing on that thoroughfare to have Elm street paved from Sixth to Fifteenth street. It is doubtful if there is a citizen living along that street who would not be glad to pay for his or her part of the work.

Mr. Joseph W. Little, candidate for Congress from this district, was here yesterday greeting his friends. Mr. Little says his prospects grow brighter all the time.

Wearing "Safety First" Buttons.

"Safety First" buttons, the inscription in flaring red letters, bearing the picture of President Wilson, are now being worn by quite a number of Lumberton people. The writer does not know whether they are 1916 campaign buttons or have some other meaning.

Messrs. C. M. Fuller and W. I. Linkhaw have returned from St. Louis where they went to buy stock. These will be the first shipments of stock received here from the West since the season of 1913-14.

The past week has been hard on the farmers of this county. Rain has fallen several days, sufficient to prevent cotton picking, while hundreds of tons of cured hay was caught by the rains before being stacked.

Sparks circus advertising car was here yesterday billing for the coming of the show Wednesday, October 20th.

DEFENDANTS WERE LACKING

Case Against Crew of Fishboat at Southport Not Tried—Car of Shrimp Shipped.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Southport, N. C., Oct. 9.—What promised to be an interesting trial last night did not come to anything, as the defendants failed to appear. The case was that of the crew of the fishboat Sadie Culver, who were to be tried for an alleged catch of mullets with a purse net within the three mile limit, made about the middle of September, as reported in this correspondence. The case was to have been heard last night before Magistrate S. P. Sharp.

Commissioner H. L. Gibbs was here, also Inspector Montgomery, for the prosecution. The defendants, 13 in number, live in Carteret county, and it was understood that they would arrive on the afternoon train from Wilmington, due here at 5:30 o'clock, but which did not arrive until about 10 p. m.

Commissioner Gibbs was ready with witnesses to proceed to trial at 6:30 p. m. at the court house, and a large crowd had gathered to hear the case. After the long wait for the train, there was great disappointment when the train did come, to find no defendants. Papers have been issued and will be served to bring those of the crew of the Sadie Culver here next week, when their case will be given a thorough hearing.

It was said that the non-appearance of the defendants was due to their having no means to pay for transportation from Beaufort to this place, the sheriff of Carteret not having in some way been notified to serve in the matter in providing transportation.

Dosher and St. George, the shrimp factory firm, made a shipment to New York this week of a solid carload of their canned shrimp. This was the first large shipment of this season's canning. The firm has made a trial of canning mullet, and those who have tasted a sample of this trial pronounce it a great success. Dosher and St. George expect to can oysters at their plant, later in the season.

hitherto have opposed the Carranza government will not be permitted to return until the government is firmly established and then only if they will pledge allegiance to it.

The form in which recognition is to be extended has not been decided. Secretary Lansing said an ambassador might be sent to the Carranza capital or an ambassdor nmed by Carranza received here, or that there might be an exchange of notes.

Hold Elections at Once.

A lengthy memorandum filed by Eliseo Arredondo, Carranza representative here, was read. It includes the pronouncement that municipal elections would be convoked at once and then a constituent assembly to which General Carranza, as first chief, shall give an accounting of his handling of the executive power. This assembly will create the constitutional government by holding a general election.

Some of the diplomats at first were inclined to suggest a policy of further waiting until General Carranza carried some of his promises into effect, but the consensus of opinion finally was that with the moral support that recognition would give, the Carranza government would be better able to carry out its pledges since he already dominated the countr yfrom a military point of view. The unanimous decision that the Carranza party possessed both the "material and moral capacity," which it had been announced would be regarded as prerequisites to recognition.

The recognition of Carranza is confidently looked upon by Secretary Lansing as a step toward the solution of the Mexican situation. With recognition the process of reconstructing Mexico is expected to begin.

General Villa's followers had hoped that the conference would continue its efforts to persuade Carranza to form a coalition government. What the Villa faction will do is not clearly indicated but that they will continue the struggle in the field is considered certain.

MRS. GOODNO PLEADS FOR WOMAN SUFFRAGE

President of the W. C. T. U. Delivers Annual Address

No Evidence of Foul Play in Death of Will Woods—Several New Corporations Chartered—State Teachers Examination.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 9.—The State convention of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union continued sessions today, receiving reports on the work of the flower mission, Christian citizenship, work among railroad employes and the crusade for unfermented wine for communion purposes.

The address of the president, Mrs. T. Adelaide Goodno, was a notable paper that appealed especially for the ballot as the right of the women of the country, especially in the light of the fact that such great armies of women are entering practically all the avenues of business activity, teaching, medicine, clerks, accountants and the professions. She gave the figures and insisted that the women should not be content to leave to the men alone the control of the conditions and revenue dominating their efforts.

The president's address was in sharp contrast to the welcome address of Governor Craig last night in which he disapproved of suffrage for women, declaring, however, that if they insisted on having it that it be given them.

There was a memorial service and noon-tide prayer that concluded the morning session.

No Evidence of Foul Play.

All possibility of developing any evidence of foul play in the death of Will Woods, linotype man, Monday night has passed and the city authorities are seeking to get John Williams, one of the "suspects" into the State hospital and will release Ed Jackson against whom there has been futile effort to procure evidence that he sold Woods whiskey in connection with his fatal debauch. Williams is addicted to the use of all manner of "dope," according to the police, and is no longer responsible.

Charters for new enterprises were issued today as follows:

The Ahoskie Light & Power Co., of Winton, Hertford county, for light and power, lumber, grist and cotton milling and ginning business; capital $50,000 authorized and $5,600 subscribed by W. S. Herring, M. R. Herring and J. D. Beale.

The Mechanical Development Co., of Lexington, capital $50,000 authorized and $25,000 subscribed by A. Leizer, P. R. Raper and M. H. Ulmer, to deal in mechanical, electrical, pneumatic and hydraulic machinery and supplies.

An amendment for the charter of the Thompson-Branton Co., of Shelby, changes the name to the Thompson Company, Z. J. Thompson being the president and W. H. Thompson the active manager.

Reward Offered for Capture.

Governor Craig announced today a reward offered by the State for the capture of George Webb, alias George Rountree, Durham county, who is badly wanted in his bailiwick to answer the charge of the murder of Sylvester Goodwin. The fugitive is a dark ginger-cake negro, 21 years old, weighing 150 pounds and 5 feet, 8 inches tall.

There are being mailed to the county superintendent of schools in each county of the State examination blanks for the examination of high school and five-year teachers certificates, the examinations to be held at the county seats October 14-15. This is the last examination of the year and all high school teachers in the State who have not already taken their examinations must undertake this examination if they are to be permitted to continue teaching.

$5,000 VERDICT SET ASIDE.

In Case of Bordeaux vs. A. C. L. Railroad—Pender Court Adjourns.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Burgaw, N. C., Oct. 9—Superior court, which had been in session here since Monday, adjourned for the term Friday, Judge Daniels leaving for his home at Goldsboro that night. Quite a number of unimportant cases were disposed of, aside from that of Bordeaux vs. Atlantic Coast Line, in which a verdict of $5,000 against the railroad was set aside by the judge Friday. Judge Daniels created a fine impression on the people by his patience, fairness and evident desire to see that justic is done.

The play, "Mr. Tompkins' Hired Man," was given at the high school auditorium last evening by local talent to a very good house and was very much enjoyed. The play was well rendered and all the characters well portrayed.

FURTHER DROP IN COTTON

Reports of Frosts in Cotton Belts Failed to Inspire Buying—Spot Price Falls to 12.30.

New York, Oct. 9.—Reports of light to heavy frosts in northern sections of the eastern and central belt failed to inspire any aggressive buying in the cotton market here this morning, and prices broke rather sharply under further liquidation or selling for a reaction. The closing was steady at a net decline of 20 to 30 points with last prices at about the lowest point of the session.

The market opened weak and generally 9 to 15 points lower and quickly sold 16 to 25 points under last night's closing figures on the more active positions. The frost news seems to be either ignored or considered of little importance in its bearing upon the size of the crop, but following the publication of the eastern belt forecast for frosts in northern sections tonight, there were rallies of some 5 to 6 points from the lowest with March selling up from 12.76 to 12.82.

There was some trade buying on this rally as well as scattered covering, but otherwise demand was comparatively light, and the market soon weakened again under continued liquidation with December selling off to 13.38; March to 12.75, and May to 12.89 in the late trading, or 21 to 27 points net lower. October was relatively steady.

Reviews of the domestic goods trade indicated continued activity with prices higher in some instances. The prospect for fair and warmer weather in the western belt and private predictions that these conditions would work east of the river over Sunday, probably inspired part of the selling and reactionists were predicting increased spot offerings with favorable weather for picking and ginning.

Cotton futures closed steady:

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

Prices Sent to Lower Levels by Selling Principally from Longs.

New Orleans, Oct. 9.—Cotton was sent to lower levels today by selling which came principally from the long side. Holders of long contracts appeared disappointed because the cold wave did not bring more frost to the cotton belt. Added to the offerings from liquidating longs was considerable short selling, bearish traders figuring the reaction had just started. The market closed at the lowest of the day, a net loss of 20 to 24 points.

Liverpool was better than due, but the steadiness there was ignored, as also were reports that English spinners were calling for cotton. Toward the middle of the morning, the market temporarily was firmer on telegrams from the central belt saying the cold weather had frightened buyers for both eastern and Carolina mills into the spot market. On this recovery prices were within 8 to 9 points of yesterday's last quotations, but the improvement did not last long. The close was steady at the decline.

Cotton futures closing: October 11.96; December 12.21; January 12.40; March 12.65; May 12.80.

Spot cotton quiet, unchanged; sales on the spot 415; to arrive 400; middling 12.00.

The market closed firm: Spot 7.70 to 8.00; October 7.73 to 7.76; November 7.73 to 7.75; December 7.78 to 7.80; January 7.81 to 7.83; February 7.91 to 7.94; March 7.99 to 8.01; April 8.10 to 8.13; May 8.16 to 8.17.

RAILROADS STILL LEADING

Stocks Rise Two to Five Points Over Friday's Striking Gains—War Specialties Backward.

New York, Oct. 9.—Railroad stocks made another strong bid for public favor today, adding two to five points to yesterday's striking gains on a very large volume of trading. Those issues ruled throughout the active session, war shares and kindred descriptions being backward.

Virtually every division of the railway list participated in the advance, which was steady and orderly. New Haven advanced 5 points to 83 1-2; Louisville & Nashville 3 1-4 to 125; St. Paul 2 3-4 to 93 1-2, and New York Central 2 to 101 3-4, while Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Chicago Northwestern, Delaware & Hudson and Southern Pacific rose to one to almost two. Some railways recorded their best quotations for a year or more. United States Steel led the list as usual, though its sales total was proportionately smaller. It rose a point to 91 3-4, which equals its high quotation of recent years. The September tonnage statement issued after the close of the market disclosed an increase of more than 400,000 tons in unfilled orders over the preceding month.

Bethlehem Steel recorded five points of yesterday's set-back at 445, and pronounced strength was evinced by American Smelting and Consolidated Gas.

An actual loan expansion of almost $44,000,000 reflected the activity of the week in securities while the cash gain of approximately $5,000,000 was in excess of estimates. Excess reserves decreased by about $7,000,000 to $189,374,720.

Another sale of Anglo-French notes was made at 98. Total sales of bonds par value, aggregated $2,655,000. United States bonds unchanged on call during the week.

WEEKLY COTTON GOODS REVIEW.

Rise in Value and Some Large Trading Reported During the Week.

New York, Oct. 9.—The rise in the value of cotton goods continued during the week and some large trading was reported. The mills have been slow to enter late contracts as they are unprovided with cotton for next year and have been slow to buy at the advanced prices. Drills and sheetings have advanced sharply. Many bleached cottons have been placed at value. Prices have been restored to last season's levels on many eastern dress ginghams, and others have been placed at value. Tickings have been placed at value, the last price being based on 11 1-2c for 8 ounce goods. Prints and printcloths have been advanced. Duck has been further advanced by a shortening of discounts and many domestic numbers are scarce. The export trade has been hampered by the rise in cotton, but shipments on old orders continue large. The fine and fancy cottons have been advanced steadily at mill centers and converters are beginning to get advances on the finished products. The activity in knit goods has increased and prices are being advanced steadily. Yarns are advancing sharply.

Quotations: Printcloths, 28-inch 64x64s, 3 1-2; 64x60s, 3 3-8c; 38 1-2 inch 64x64s, 4 7-8c; brown sheetings, Southern standards, 7 1-4; denims, 9 ounce, 14c; tickings, 8 ounce, 11 1-2c, at value; prints 5 1-4c; staple ginghams, 6 1-4c; dress ginghams, 8 1-2c, at value.

FIVE PRISONERS ESCAPE.

Pitt County Jail-Birds Make Successful Get-Away in Daylight.

(Special Star Correspondence.)

Greenville, N. C., Oct. 9.—Some time soon after the noon feeding of the prisoners, five managed to make good their escape, by sawing to liberty through the iron gratings to the window. Jack Moore, Babe Fleming, Walter Wilson, Pitt Parker and Sylvester Burs, all negroes awaiting the November court for car-breaking, were the ones escaping. With an improvised saw made from the steel spring from a shoe they first sawed the bars to the window, and then sawed the fastenings from the window frame on the inside. They could reach the bars through the window. One bar was sawed out and another sawed at one end and then bent out of the way. This made an opening large enough for them to get through and to the ground was an easy job. They then scaled the jail fence and made high time to the tall timbers or elsewhere a sthey have not been found.

THOUSANDS TAKE PART IN TEMPERANCE PARADE

unpopular that the public would declare for its revocation.

The parade was the third ever held by the dry Chicago federation. General Frederick Grant marched at the head of the first parade a decade ago. Its organizers said it was held not only in celebration of Mayor Thompson's action but as the first step in the campaign to vote Chicago entirely dry at the election in April.

Meanwhile cafes, restaurants and hotels reported that they were deluged with orders for reserved tables by those anxious to celebrate the advent of "lid day" with rivalry.

"SEED SELECTION DAY."

Observed by Many Farmers Yesterday in Kinston Section.

Kinston, N. C., Oct. 9.—"Seed selection day" was observed by many planters in this section today. The day was set apart by the agricultural authorities in the State for the selection of seed ears in the field rather than from the crib later. It has been a common practice with many North Carolina farmers to take seed corn from the crib in the spring just before planting time, according to O. F. McCrary, the local farm demonstration agent. This method is far inferior to field selection, especially in the case of two-eared or prolific varieties.

GRANADOS IS EXECUTED.

Charged With Complicity in Killing of President Madero.

Washington, Oct. 9.—Alberto Garcia Granados, minister of the interior in the Huerta cabinet, was executed today in Mexico City, according to State Department advices, charged with complicity in the killing of President Madero.

Charlottesville, Va., Oct. 9.—Virginia defeated Richmond College here today 74 to 0. Captain Mayer contributed 37 points on five touchdowns and seven goals from touchdowns. Virginia used 25 men, all of whom will be taken to Harvard next week.

NEITHER BOSTON OR PHILADELphia have absolute assurance they are going to win the pennant. But the success of "Wi-no-ca Terrace" is irrefutably assured. Located about in the centre of Wilmington, "Wi-no-ca" is bounded on the north by Red Cross street, which has lately been improved as far out as Fifteenth street; on the east by the good road of Seventeenth street, and on the south by the splendid Market Street boulevard. The new County High School, to cost about Sixty Thousand Dollars, will soon be started on a "Wi-no-ca" site, Thirteenth and Market streets, while two handsome homes, costing Twelve Thousand Dollars, are also building on "Wi-no-ca" lots. All this, in addition to the numerous handsome dwellings that already adorn the place, go far towards making "Wi-no-ca" the best and most select section of Wilmington.
